

I Am From Human Beings

I am from the Midwest
The feeling of being in the middle
The sounds of sporadic weather
And witnessing people being played like a damn fiddle

I am from normalcy
That's what the nation tells me
Pale, male, and avail
There's no pride to be seen

I am from my father's words
Who taught me quite well
"Treat all human beings you see with human kindness"
"If not you're better off in hell"

I am cut from the cloth of humanity
As humans we all are the same,
But we all are different humans
It's an odd way to observe the world's game
