This Institution, known at present as St. Xavier College, was established October 17, 1831, by the Rt. Rev. E. D. Fenwick, D.D., first Bishop of Cincinnati, under the name of the "Athenæum." In the year 1840 it was transferred, by the Most Rev. Archbishop, J. B. Purcell, D.D., to the Fathers of the Society of Jesus, who have conducted it ever since under the title first mentioned. It was incorporated by the General Assembly of the State in 1842. In 1869 an act was passed which secures to the Institution a perpetual charter and all the privileges usually granted to universities.

The course of study embraces the Doctrine and Evidences of the Catholic Religion, Logic, Metaphysics, Ethics, Astronomy, Natural Philosophy, Chemistry, Mathematics, Rhetoric, Composition, Elocution, History, Geography, Arithmetic, Penmanship, Book-keeping, Actual Business, Commercial Law, the Latin, Greek, English, German and French languages. The College is provided with suitable Philosophical Apparatus, and possesses a valuable Museum, containing a large collection of Mineralogical and Geological specimens. In the department of Chemistry extensive improvements have been made, both in point of a large stock of apparatus, and of excellent facilities for work. The new Laboratory is supplied with every requisite appliance. Each of the forty desks is fitted with drawers and lockers, separate drainage and water supply, and gas for both heating and illuminating purposes. This Laboratory is used by students in Qualitative Analysis and General Chemistry; a Laboratory course in the latter being required in addition to the regular lecture and daily repetition.

The Library numbers about 16,000 volumes. There are also select libraries for the use of the students.
General Regulations.

The Academic Year consists of one session, beginning on the first Monday of September, and ending in the last week of June, when the Annual Commencement, the Conferring of Degrees and the Distribution of Premiums take place.

The session is divided into two terms—the first ending on the first of January and the second in the last week of June. A thorough examination of all the classes is made at the close of the second term. There are four competitions during the course of the year—the first in October, the second in December, the third in February and the fourth toward the end of April. The first, second and third competitions, are followed by distribution of Premiums. The places or degrees of merit obtained by the students in the different classes are publicly proclaimed, and honors are awarded to such as have been most distinguished for good conduct, diligence and proficiency.

On completion of the Classical Course, the degree of A. B. is conferred upon those who, on examination, are found deserving of that distinction. Subsequently the degree of A. M. can be obtained by devoting a second year to the study of Philosophy in the Institution, or two years to a learned profession. Students of the Commercial Course receive an honorary certificate on completion of the course.

Every candidate for admission who is not personally acquainted with some member of the Faculty, must produce proper testimonials of a good moral character. If he comes from another College, he will be required to present a certificate of good standing in the institution which he has left.

Quarterly reports are sent to the parents or guardians of the students, to inform them of the conduct and improvement of their sons or wards.
Punctual attendance is earnestly recommended. Parents are regularly informed of the non-attendance of their sons, who, in case of absence, are invariably required to bring a note of excuse to the Vice-President. In order that the lessons may be prepared with proper assiduity, parents are requested to insist on their sons studying at home for two or three hours every evening. When students are to be withdrawn from the institution, due notice should be given to the President.

The College is open every morning at half-past seven o'clock. Those who come before the time of class proceed at once to the Study Hall, and devote the interval to private study. All are required to be present five minutes before half-past eight o'clock, at which hour the Catholic students hear Mass. At nine o'clock A.M. the regular exercises of class commence, closing at three o'clock P.M.

None are received as boarders in the College.

For the maintenance of order and discipline, strict obedience, assiduous application, and blameless conduct are required of every student. Any serious fault regarding these essential points renders the offender liable to effective correction, and even to dismissal, if it be deemed necessary by the Faculty.
Daily Order.

SINGLE SESSION.

The Study Hall is open for students at 7:30 A.M. At 8:30 all the Catholic students hear Mass. Classes begin at 9 o'clock, and, with an intermission of fifteen minutes, go on till noon. Half an hour is then allowed for lunch. Classes are resumed at 12:30 P.M., and, with an intermission of ten minutes, go on till 3:00.

Terms.

As the Institution is not endowed, it is entirely dependent for its support on the fees paid for tuition.

Tuition, per session of ten months, for all classes, $60.00.

Students of Chemistry and Natural Philosophy, for the use of the apparatus, pay $10.00 per session.

Diplomas for Graduates in the Classical Course, $5.00.

Certificates for the completion of the Commercial Course, $5.00.

Payments must be made quarterly or semi-annually in advance. The account for tuition dates from the day of the student's entrance. No deduction is allowed for absence, save in case of dismissal or protracted illness. The session is divided into quarters, beginning respectively about the 1st of September, the 15th of November, the 1st of February, and the 15th of April.

Examination of Philosophy Class.

PHILOSOPHY.

FIRST TERM—LOGIC AND GENERAL METAPIYYSICS.

1. Philosophy may be defined: The science of all things in their ultimate and most universal causes, acquired by natural reason.

2. Logic is natural and artificial. The latter, which is primarily a science and not merely an art, is subdivided into formal and material or applied, (Dialectics, Criticism).

3. The three acts of the mind, with which formal logic is concerned, are simple apprehension, judgment, reasoning.

4. In acquiring knowledge we use attention, abstraction, reflection, association of ideas, analysis, synthesis.

5. We may classify ideas according to—
   (a) Their Origin, as intuitive, factitious;
   (b) Their Representative Perfection, as clear, distinct, complete, adequate;
   (c) Their Extension, as singular, particular, collective, universal, transcendental;
   (d) The Nature of their object, as geometrical, pure, concrete, abstract.

6. Words are oral terms, arbitrary signs of ideas.

7. Oral terms are real or logical; simple or complex; univocal, equivocal or analogous.

8. Judgments are mediate or immediate, a priori or a posteriori. We can not admit Kant’s synthetic a priori judgments.

9. A proposition is a judgment expressed in words. The extension of a proposition—universal, particular or singular—is referred to as its quantity; the form—affirmative or negative—is referred to as its quality.

10. Propositions may differ in quantity and quality; the extension and comprehension of their terms may also vary.
11. Propositions have absolute and relative properties: the relative are opposition, conversion, equivalence.

12. An argument is reasoning expressed in words. The syllogism, to which all other forms can be reduced, gives us the process of reasoning in the natural order.

13. In analyzing a syllogism, we must consider the remote and proximate matter, and the form.

14. The sorites, dilemma, enthymeme and epichirema, are variations of the syllogism.

15. The principal kinds of complex syllogisms are the conditional, the conjunctive and disjunctive.

16. The rules of the syllogism are reduced to eight, four of which regard the terms; four, the propositions. They are:
   (a) It must contain three and only three terms.
   (b) No term can have a greater extension in the conclusion, than in the premises.
   (c) The middle term must be at least once distributed; i.e., it must be taken at least once in its whole extension.
   (d) The conclusion must never contain the middle term.
   (e) A negative conclusion can not follow two affirmative premises.
   (f) No conclusion can follow from two negative premises.
   (g) The conclusion follows the less worthy premise.
   (h) No conclusion follows from two particular premises.

17. We must distinguish between a fallacy and a paralogism. The principal fallacies are those of the accident, the qualified and unqualified statement, the consequent, the cause, the question, the reference, objections, begging the question, evading the question.

18. Truth—conformity between an intellect and a thing—is metaphysical, logical and moral.

19. Logical truth—conformity of an intellect with its object—is found explicitly and perfectly in judgments, inchoatively and imperfectly in simple apprehensions.

20. The states of the mind, with regard to truth are ignorance, error, doubt, opinion, certainty.

21. Certainty exists; therefore universal skepticism is absurd.

22. Certainty, if we consider only its positive element, admits of degrees.

23. Simple apprehension, as such, is never false; judgments may be.

24. The theory that we acquire certainty only through strict demonstration is so false that it implicitly denies the very possibility of demonstration.

25. The external senses, under the requisite conditions and with regard to their proper objects, are means of acquiring certainty.

26. The veracity of the internal senses, when properly disposed and rightly applied, should not be doubted.
27. Reasoning, which is materially and formally correct, is an infallible means of acquiring certainty.

28. The intellect, in its immediate analytical judgments, is free from error.

29. Human testimony can often furnish us with motives of certainty regarding contemporaneous events which do not fall under our own observation.

30. Human testimony can often furnish us with motives of certainty regarding past events.

31. Objective evidence, i.e., the necessary intelligibility of a thing, is the ultimate and general criterion of truth—motive of certainty. Hence we reject the Traditionalism of Huet and DeLamennais, as well as the Subjectivism of Des Cartes.

32. Keeping in mind the distinction between extrinsic and intrinsic possibility, we hold that intrinsic possibility does not depend on the Divine power (Ockham), or on the Divine will (Des Cartes).

34. We have a clear, though generic idea of efficient causality.

35. The principle of causality is analytical and absolutely certain.

36. The origin of the world can not be explained by the existence of unproduced matter, or by emanation from the Divine substance. Hence the theories of the Monists must be rejected.

37. The world could come into existence only through creation.

38. Miracles are possible.

39. We have means of distinguishing miracles from wonders performed by created agents.

40. The phenomena of mesmerism, hypnotism, spiritism and theosophism furnish no argument against real miracles.

SECOND TERM—SPECIAL METAPHYSICS AND ETHICS.

1. Life, in actu secundo, consists in immanence of action; in actu primo, life is the living substance, the principle of this immanent action.

2. The vital principle is the substantial form, distinct from matter and from all mechanical and chemical force.

3. Brute animals have no intelligence.

4. The human soul, i.e., the principle of life, thought and volition in man, is a simple substance.

5. It is, moreover, spiritual.

6. Thought so far transcends the powers of matter, that its existence in mere matter is metaphysically repugnant.

7. The human soul can live after separation from the body.
8. As a matter of fact, the human soul will live forever after its separation from the body.

9. The human will enjoys not only freedom from coercion, but also freedom of indifference; that is, when all the requisites for action are present, it can act or not act, and it can so choose one thing that it might have chosen another.

10. Since it is impossible that everything without exception should be contingent and produced, it follows that there must be a necessary, unproduced being, viz., that Supreme Being called God.

11. The admirable order of the universe manifests the existence of a Supreme Being which presides over all things.

12. The universal and constant consent of mankind is such as to prove the existence of the Supreme Being.

13. No created thing can be the objective last end of man.

14. God is the objective last end of man.

15. There is an intrinsic difference between moral good and moral evil.

16. There exists a natural law, which is the eternal law manifested to us by reason.

17. The natural law, considered in itself, is absolutely immutable.

18. No one can be invincibly ignorant of the more general principles of the natural law.

19. Rights and Duties are correlatives.

20. Man is bound to give internal and external worship to God.

21. Suicide is a violation of the natural law.

22. Duelling is forbidden by the natural law.

23. Though homicide is forbidden by the natural law, it is sometimes allowable to kill an unjust aggressor.

24. The right to permanent property, even in land, is from nature's law.

25. Prescription, as sanctioned by civil law, is a legitimate means of acquiring ownership.

26. The main tenet of Radical Socialism—enforced community of goods—must be utterly rejected; for it would injure those whom it is intended to benefit, it would be contrary to the natural rights of mankind, and it would introduce confusion and disorder into the commonwealth.

27. The natural law requires that the children should succeed to the property of parents who die intestate. The assertion, that such property is at the disposal of the State, is, therefore, false and destructive of social order.

28. The binding force of last wills and testaments comes primarily from the natural law, not from the State.

29. The social state is natural to man.

30. Savagery is not the original condition of the human race, but a degenerate state.

31. The bond of matrimony is intended by the law of nature to be perpetual.
32. Civil authority can not determine nullifying impediments to matrimony; it may, however, punish persons who attempt to contract marriage in violation of the natural law.

33. The origin of civil society in general must be referred to God.

34. The origin of civil society in the concrete depends on some human contingent fact.

35. Authority is essential to civil society, as to every other kind of society.

36. Civil authority, considered in itself, is derived, not from any social pact, but from God.

37. The subject of civil authority is determined, not by a law of nature, but by the human contingent facts which give rise to the particular civil community, and shape its organic law.

38. The ultimate end of civil society is God; the proximate end, the temporal well-being of the citizens.

39. Though civil society is necessary for the human race in general, there is no precept of the natural law obliging each and every individual to remain permanently in society.

40. Civil authority has not the right to destroy at pleasure minor associations which are not illicit in themselves; and it may not confiscate their property or interfere in their internal administration.

41. Laws which punish indiscriminately all poor persons who are found begging, are unjust.

42. Trade-unions and strikes are not, in themselves, illicit.

43. The high sea can not be the property of any nation.

44. War, offensive or defensive, is sometimes licit.

45. The theory of non-intervention, as understood by European politicians, is false.

46. It is not licit to declare war against a nation on account of its domestic violations of the natural law, unless such violations injure the certain rights of other nations.

47. A nation has no right to force another to open ports to commerce.
