Anti-death penalty movement comes to Xavier

BY MELISSA MOSKO
Senior News Editor

A large group of murder victims’ family members, inmates freed from death row and family members of death row inmates are touring Ohio for 17 days in hopes of spreading their message across the state for abolishing the death penalty.

Xavier is hosting three stops along the “Journey of Hope” on Monday nights. The Journey will kick-off on Sunday, Sept. 28 at 3 p.m. at St. John’s Church in West Chester with a speech by Sr. Helen Prejean, author of Dead Man Walking and abolition expert. MUSC, the Cincinnati’s Women’s Choir, will be performing as well.

One of the highlights of the events at Xavier University will be held at the Dorothy Day House during their weekly vegetarian meal served on Monday nights. The weekly “veg-out,” on the 29th will be joined by Bill Pelke and Shirley Dicks, from Journey of Hope. Pelke, an Alaska resident, is the founder of Murder Victims Families for Reconciliation, and president and co-founder of Journey of Hope. Pelke’s grandmother was murdered by a 15-year-old girl, who became the youngest woman on Death Row in America.

Pelke forgave the woman, and worked on her case for commutation of her death sentence. Dicks is the mother of a former death row inmate who was wrongly convicted and charged. After 22 years on Death Row, her son died of medical neglect while in prison.

Now, she actively works for abolition of the death penalty and also for proper medical treatment for all inmates.

“I feel that we don’t subtract violence by adding violence...To me, executing people is a violent act, and it is an unnecessary violent act."

-Ben Urmston, S.J.

Kate Beckinsale, a vampire warrior, is on the hunt for werewolves in her latest film, “Underworld.”

Photos provided by Melissa Clancy

By Jimmy Dillon
Diversions Editor

De yourself a favor: take a trip to the “Underworld,” and pick a side: werewolves or vampires.

In this rather dark and gothic thriller, debuting director Len Wiseman guides the audience through a developed plot masked by the action of warring werewolves and vampires.

The alluring Kate Beckinsale (“Pearl Harbor”) stars as Selene, a vampire warrior fighting in the underground and ancient war between werewolves, known as lycans, and vampires. She is a mighty good wolf-killer, using high-tech guns and gadgets to stalk and kill the beasts.

On one particular hunting session, Selene and other lycan hunters, known as the “Death Dealers,” follow a pack of werewolves into a subway. Needless to say, violence ensues. Neither gang of supernatural killers has much regard for human life as the groups fire aimlessly through a crowd of unsuspecting commuters.

After the battle, Selene learns the werewolves were following a mere human into the subway. This human, Michael Corvin, is played by Scott Speedman (“Dark Blue”) who is being sought for his unique blood type which will allow the lycans to create a super-werewolf/vampire. The excitement is almost too much to handle at this point.

Meanwhile, there is some restlessness in the vampire camp. In three days, the vampires will “awaken” one of their slumbering, ancient father vampires to rise and lead the clan for another century.

Continued on page 11...
BSA promotes new all-inclusive attitude

BY JOHN THOMAS

The Black Student Association (BSA) has made some new and exciting improvements this year, all centering around this year’s theme, which is based on a quote from Gandhi:

“We must become the change we wish to see in the world.”

With this quotation as its inspiration and led by the president of the organization, junior Ashley Brailsford, it is apparent BSA is headed in a new and improved direction.

Her main objective is to infuse cultural awareness into the black community upon Xavier University students.

Founded by Xavier University alumnus Antonio Johnson in 1976, the organization has now grown to 64 members, and advocates the expansion of cultural awareness in the University community.

The organization plans to achieve these goals through various means, such as different programs that are intellectually and spiritually-based with an emphasis on leadership.

The programs are organized by six different committees in the organization, each with a specific focus.

These include a community service committee, cultural community service, leadership committee, social committee, forums and workshop committee, and a committee specifically geared toward the Antonio Johnson Memorial Scholarship Banquet.

“We are doing a lot of focus this year on leadership this year, especially with first-year students,” said Brailsford.

“It’s a great support system for black students. The committees all have different focuses, while still maintaining the concept of leadership and making a difference. The community service committee provides opportunities for students to give back to the Xavier community and the surrounding areas.

The cultural committee displays, educates and promotes cultural awareness, while the forums and workshops committee plans informative and educational programs that enrich African-American students in all aspects of life.

Lastly, the social community plans social events for students to get to know one another and to have fun.

The organization, as a whole, has one main concentration for this year: inclusiveness.

“We do have members outside the black race that participate in various activities and committees,” Ashley Brailsford, BSA President.

“Our programs are for everybody, so we want everyone to participate, so we can learn from each other. We are here to build a community as a whole, not just the students, but the faculty and administration as well,” Brailsford added.

BSA wants to become engaged with a diverse body through co-sponsoring and support services that everyone can use.

Some programs will remain the same as last year, such as the Antonio Johnson Memorial Scholarship Banquet that is held in Johnson’s honor every year in the Cintas Center.

Other activities and programs include a movie and soul food night, a Homecoming celebration, a Thanksgiving soup kitchen and a fashion show.

The BSA also wants everyone to know that they are an organization that fully welcomes anyone who is interested in joining.

“We do have members outside the black race that participate in various activities and committees,” Brailsford responded.

“Just because we advocate black awareness doesn’t mean we are exclusive to blacks.”

In a city where racial tensions have been a predominant focus in past years, having an organization like this for Xavier University has been a great opportunity for many African-American students.

“Last year, a lot of discussions on campus brought out many important issues for black students in response to that concern,” Brailsford said.

Meetings for the general body of the organization are held on Tuesday nights at 7 p.m. in Kelley Auditorium. Those meetings are open to all students.

For more information concerning the Black Student Organization, please contact the Office of Multi-Cultural Affairs at x3185. You can also stop by and visit them in the Gallagher Student Center room 280. They welcome all visitors.

Police Notes

September 15, 8:30 a.m. — A Physical Plant employee reported an interior door kicked in at the Webster Avenue facility.

September 15, 12:29 p.m. — A Montessori school employee reported that a basketball hoop in the rear of Joseph playground had been torn down.

September 15, 12:45 p.m. — Campus Police and the Cincinnati Fire Department investigated a fire alarm in the Commons. An investigation revealed that students burning food activated the smoke detectors.

September 16, 10:45 a.m. — A commuter student reported her vehicle had been stolen off campus in the 1500 block of Dana Avenue on Sunday, Sept. 14. The vehicle was recovered by Cincinnati Police.

September 16, 11:55 a.m. — A commuter student reported wallet and textbooks stolen from an unlocked vehicle in the Cohen lot.

September 16, 8:30 p.m. — Campus Police investigated a two-car accident in the North lot. Two students sustained minor injuries in the accident.

September 17, 4:58 p.m. — Campus Police investigated a one-car accident in the C2 lot. The vehicle was towed.

September 17, 5:30 p.m. — Campus Police and Physical Plant extinguished a small grease fire in the second floor kitchen of the Gallagher Student Center.

September 18, 11:40 a.m. — Three students were cited for underage consumption of alcohol and failure to cooperate with a campus Police officer.

September 18, 5:20 p.m. — A resident student received emails from a fictitious company soliciting credit card information. Campus Police reminds students to never release personal information.

September 19, 9:30 a.m. — A resident student reported the unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. The vehicle was found in a spot other than where she parked it.

September 19, 6:20 p.m. — A non-resident student was arrested on an outstanding warrant after he was seen acting suspiciously in the F&W parking lot.

September 20, 12:31 a.m. — Campus Police observed two resident students walking while intoxicated on University Drive. They were cited for underage consumption of alcohol.

September 20, 5:09 a.m. — Campus Police and the Cincinnati Fire Department investigated a fire alarm at the Field House. A second floor smoke detector was activated for unknown reasons.

Senior night with the Reds

Attention seniors! The first event organized by the Senior Board is Thursday, Sept. 26 at the Reds game. Tickets are available for $1, including bus transportation to and from the game. If you would still like tickets to this event, contact the Senior Board at seniorboard@yahoo.com.

Animal Rights meeting

Students who are interested in getting involved with promoting animal rights on campus should attend the informational meeting on Tuesday, Sept. 30 at 4 p.m. in the Gallagher Center, room 330.
What's on Tap?

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Date</th>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Event</th>
<th>Location</th>
<th>Sponsor</th>
<th>Contact</th>
<th>Phone</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Wed 9/24</td>
<td>3:30 p.m.</td>
<td>ESL Coffee Hour</td>
<td>3032 Ledgewood</td>
<td>Int. Stud. Services</td>
<td>Heather Kilgore</td>
<td>X2864</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>12:30 p.m.</td>
<td>EURES discussion of William McDonough's work</td>
<td>GSC, Room 214</td>
<td>Theology</td>
<td>Dr. Marie Giblet</td>
<td>X2021</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>4 p.m.</td>
<td>Academic Service</td>
<td>Hallstones Hall, Rm. 17</td>
<td>n/a</td>
<td>Susan Namer</td>
<td>X3042</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>8:30 p.m.</td>
<td>Learning Seminar</td>
<td>DDH</td>
<td>Peace and Justice</td>
<td>Patrick Welage</td>
<td>X3768</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>8:15 p.m.</td>
<td>St. Vincent DePaul meeting</td>
<td>DDH</td>
<td>Peace and Justice</td>
<td>Susan Scarpacei</td>
<td>X3046</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Thurs 9/25</td>
<td>6:30 p.m.</td>
<td>Amnesty International meeting</td>
<td>DDH</td>
<td>Peace and Justice</td>
<td>Susan Scarpacei</td>
<td>X3046</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>6:30 p.m.</td>
<td>Founder's Day</td>
<td>Cintas Center</td>
<td>n/a</td>
<td>Alexasaid@xavier.edu</td>
<td>X3571</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>7:30 p.m.</td>
<td>Evening of One Acts</td>
<td>GSC Theatre</td>
<td>XU Players</td>
<td>Josh Neumayer</td>
<td>X3576</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>8 p.m.</td>
<td>&quot;Friends&quot;/&quot;Simpsons&quot; Trivia</td>
<td>Kelley Auditorium</td>
<td>STYUEA and SAC</td>
<td>Brigid Molloy</td>
<td>X4887</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>9 p.m.</td>
<td>VOS meeting</td>
<td>DDH</td>
<td>Peace and Justice</td>
<td>Susan Scarpacei</td>
<td>X3046</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fri 9/26</td>
<td>4:30 p.m.</td>
<td>Alternative Break Club meeting</td>
<td>DDH</td>
<td>Peace and Justice</td>
<td>Susan Scarpacei</td>
<td>X3046</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>5 p.m.</td>
<td>GetAway Retreats</td>
<td>Higher Ground Retreat Center</td>
<td>Campus Ministry</td>
<td>Megan Halverson</td>
<td>X3567</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>9 p.m.</td>
<td>Pro-med BBQ</td>
<td>Brown, Logan and Alberts</td>
<td>Pre-med</td>
<td>Ann Marie Castleman</td>
<td>n/a</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>9 p.m.</td>
<td>Latin Dance</td>
<td>Cintas Center, Banquet 2</td>
<td>Int. Stud. Society</td>
<td>Helen Dolive</td>
<td>X2862</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sat 9/27</td>
<td>2:30 p.m.</td>
<td>Evening of One Acts</td>
<td>GSC Theatre</td>
<td>XU Players</td>
<td>Josh Neumayer</td>
<td>X3576</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>9 p.m.</td>
<td>Jazz Quartet</td>
<td>GSCAtrium</td>
<td>SAC</td>
<td>Joanie Weidner</td>
<td>X4250</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sun 9/28</td>
<td>2:30 p.m.</td>
<td>Classical Piano Series</td>
<td>GSC Theatre</td>
<td>Music Series</td>
<td>Rev. John Heim</td>
<td>X3151</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>3 p.m.</td>
<td>Game Day and Pizza party</td>
<td>residential mall</td>
<td>Peace and Justice</td>
<td>Susan Scarpacei</td>
<td>X3046</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>7 p.m.</td>
<td>Lecture: William McDonough</td>
<td>Schiff Family Conf.</td>
<td>Theology</td>
<td>Dr. Marie Giblin</td>
<td>X2021</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>8 p.m.</td>
<td>Jazz Ensemble</td>
<td>Edgecliff Recital Hall</td>
<td>Music</td>
<td>Tami Searkamp-Fugazzi</td>
<td>X3801</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mon 9/29</td>
<td>12 p.m.</td>
<td>Lunch and Learn Seminar; Reflexology</td>
<td>GSC, Room 300</td>
<td>Health and Counseling</td>
<td>Dr. Renee Zuciero</td>
<td>X3022</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>6 p.m.</td>
<td>Veg Out</td>
<td>DDH</td>
<td>Peace and Justice</td>
<td>Susan Scarpacei</td>
<td>X3046</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>7:30 p.m.</td>
<td>Presentation on Death Penalty</td>
<td>Kelley Auditorium</td>
<td>Peace and Justice</td>
<td>Susan Scarpacei</td>
<td>X3046</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wed 10/1</td>
<td>3:30 p.m.</td>
<td>Writing Center Coffee Hour</td>
<td>Alter Hall, B12</td>
<td>Int. Stud. Services</td>
<td>Heather Kilgore</td>
<td>X2864</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>10:30 p.m.</td>
<td>Science Meeting</td>
<td>Biology Department</td>
<td>Biology Dept.</td>
<td>Steve@InnerSync.com</td>
<td>X0211</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

---

Miami's Student Body President Has Invited XU's Students to help ...

X OUT THE BEARCATS

What: Miami vs. Cincinnati Football Game
When: September 27th @ 2:00 PM
Where: Yager Stadium - Oxford, OH

Xavier Students Admitted Free To The Game With Xavier Student ID!!

Then, on Dec. 9th, come see Xavier battle Miami in men's basketball at Millett Hall in Oxford. Buy your tickets for this match-up at the football game and receive a FREE "Go RedHawks! X out the Bearcats" T-shirt while supplies last (quantity limited to 100 shirts).

---

FOR MORE INFORMATION, CALL
513-529-HAWK
The Witness
Learn the real story behind the meat and fur industries. See one man's journey in becoming an impassioned animal activist. Show Time: 4:00 pm Kelly Auditorium Tues., Sept. 23 and Wed., Sept. 24

Anyone who is vegetarian or interested in vegetarianism come to Group Meeting after “The Witness”, 5:00 p.m. Wed., Sept. 24 Kelly Auditorium Lobby or call 259-9209

Ohio’s Best Thrift Store
Village Discount Outlet
www.villagediscount.com
9529 Pippin Road, Cincinnati, OH 45231
1813 Monmouth St., Newport, KY 41071

- Housewares
- Clothing
- Bicycles
- Furniture

Village Discount Outlet
$5.00

REDEEMABLE IN MERCHANDISE ONLY WITH A MINIMUM $10.00 PURCHASE AT VILLAGE DISCOUNT OUTLET. EXCLUDES FOOD AND NEW MERCHANDISE. ONE COUPON PER PURCHASE. NO OTHER DISCOUNTS APPLY. 10/31/03

A Tremendous Selection of Name Brands
Thousands of New Arrivals Every Day!
Dr. Marianne Murphy: From banking to teaching

BY TARA DIXON
News Features Editor

It takes a unique person to leave a rewarding and exciting job in the professional business world to become a college professor. Dr. Marianne Murphy, new assistant professor of information systems, is one of those unique people.

She grew up as one of 10 children. "You learn to get along, and eat fast!" she said. She has good family relationships with her siblings and father, as well as her daughter. She has a 19-year-old daughter who goes to school in North Carolina. Her daughter has helped her to connect with her students more easily. "My daughter helps me relate to my students better. Until she got older I didn't understand my students as well as I do now," she said.

Murphy grew up in Youngstown, Ohio, and attended Youngstown State University where she studied psychology and social work. "I was very idealistic. My brother had been killed in Vietnam. I believed I wanted to change the world, and I thought that was a vehicle toward that," she said. She spent one year doing social work, then she decided it wasn't for her. "It was probably too sensitive for that field. I wanted to bring everyone home."

"When I quit being in social work, I decided to go back to banking," she said. She eventually became an auditor for a three-state-wide bank and became certified in information systems.

In addition to being an audit manager, Murphy also worked in mergers and acquisitions, and systems integrations work. She enjoyed the fast-paced, stressful world of banking. "You can work 30 hours straight, go home and sleep for two hours and get a call because a system went down. I like that, but it gets old," she said.

Murphy received her MBA from Kent State University, and later she earned a Ph.D., from Arizona State University. After she got her Ph.D., she began teaching. She taught at Arizona State University, Bentley College in Maryland, and Northeastern University before coming to Xavier.

Becoming a professor was a natural move for Murphy. In her previous experience, she had enjoyed training new employees and teaching them new skills. "I felt as though I had a knack for teaching and explaining difficult things in very easy terms," she said. "There are always things that don't work in a system," she said. "It's very exciting to me to be able to explain that to students so they understand."

When she was offered a position at Xavier, she decided to leave Boston and Northeastern University and move to Cincinnati. "I felt as though I wanted to be in a place where the cost of living wasn't as high, and I also wanted to be closer to my family," she said.

Compared to Boston, she believes Cincinnati is a more convenient place to be. "Everything is more accessible," she said. People in Cincinnati and at Xavier are very open, according to Murphy. "People are very friendly," she said. "I've taught at big universities, and here it's much easier to meet people."

Her students have made the biggest impact on her, so far. "I think Xavier students are very bright," she said. "They have really impressed me."

Murphy's favorite part of teaching is interacting with her students. She sees student-professor interaction as the cornerstone of learning. "Interaction, interaction, interaction, anytime, anywhere," she said. "The classroom is only a small part of teaching.

She is always for interaction, even after the student leaves the classroom. "When you know you affected their life in such a way that they feel compelled to keep in contact with you and tell you about the job they have is the most rewarding thing," she said.

Murphy believes that professors have an important responsibility to ward their students. "Our job is to help secure your economic future," she said. College professors sometimes have a tougher job in the classroom than other teachers. Elementary and high school teachers take education courses in college and are taught how to teach. In doctoral programs, "they want to develop scholars; that you can teach is assumed," she said.

"I know my field well, but being able to convert it into teaching school is fascinating." Murphy is doing research into lifelong learning and distance education. In the past, people used to stay with one career and skill until they retired. "Now, to remain competitive, people have to be lifelong learners, to learn new skills and take new classes, because technology is forever changing," she said.

Distance education was designed for the student who couldn't attend day classes. "This use of technology was first implemented in the United Kingdom. There are currently programs for distance learning in the United States."

"The University of Phoenix does a lot with distance education by using correspondence or the Internet," Murphy said. "Blackboard is also a tool for distance education," she said. "We incorporate that into the regular classroom."

"What I'm interested in is how lifelong learning and the idea of distance education is going to change higher education. Higher education is still geared toward the traditional student. I believe it's going to change the way we provide higher education," she said.
If you're like most Xavier students, you have, residing on your computer, illegal copyrighted material. Whether it be the first 50 Cent or that movie that you were too embarrassed to buy in a store, you're pirating media and you probably don't think too much about it when you were downloading it.

But don't treat it too easily, because the Recording Industry Association of America has been cracking down on people illegally downloading and sharing copyrighted music for the past couple years.

In a press release posted on its Web Site, the RIAA (Recording Industry Association of America) clearly outlined how they have "flipped the first wave of what could ultimately be thousands of civil lawsuits against major offenders who have been illegally distributing substantial amounts (averaging more than 1,000 copyrighted music files) of copyrighted music on peer-to-peer networks."

So what does this mean to you? Well, if you have a significant amount of copyrighted music on your computer, you may abandon take down the "I'm just a college student! There are more responsible for my actions" routine.

Students at Loyola University Chicago, New York University, Bentley University and Northwestern University have already been subpoenaed for files they were sharing on their computers. Many more subpoenas are expected to be issued in the coming months.

So what can you do to make sure you don't end up paying hefty fines or defending yourself in your criminal record? Basically the only way to be safe is to stop downloading all copyrighted material, or own up to it and pledge to never do it again.

The RIAA has offered amnesty to anyone coming forward and admitting they downloaded copyrighted music, as long as they pledge to never do it again. In a statement issued on its Web Site, the RIAA explicitly said that it "will guarantees not to sue file sharers who have not yet been identified in any RIAA investigations and who provide a signed and notarized affidavit in which they promise to respect recording company copyrights."

However, if you're really determined to stick to The Man and keep on with your pirating ways, the smartest thing to do would be not to share files that you download off Peer-to-Peer (P2P) services such as Kazaa.

Unfortunately for campus users of such file sharing programs, the RIAA seems to be determined to target the biggest demographic for illegal file sharing: college students.

There are plans in the works to develop a massive database of music and software in the form of the ever-popular MP3 file that would require a small fee from the user for each individual download. This would ensure that users still have the accessibility to download and a wide variety of music without breaking the law or depriving artists of their royalties.

However, no such service has been implemented on a wide scale, and P2P programs such as Kazaa, iMeush, Soulseek and others remain as popular as ever. If the RIAA continues its barrage of lawsuits, the face of the P2P community could change very rapidly in a short amount of time.

If you like to download copyrighted music, be sure you know the risk you're taking.

After just five weeks into the school year, three African-American administrators have decided to pursue their careers in other places besides Xavier.

This does not come as a surprise to us as students, who will also leave one day, but we hope the African-American perspective and leadership still remains strong despite these individuals' personal decisions.

As faculty and administrators Lori Wright (Office of Admissions), Ken Durgans (Human Resources), and Katherine Grant (Student Support Services) begin their new lives off campus, it is known that their impact and support are strongly missed, but our journeys must continue as members of the Xavier community.

This letter is not to focus on why they left, but to focus on the continuing legacy of African-American leaders among college students. Every interaction makes a difference in the life of a student especially at college as we begin to learn more about ourselves and those around us. Although the leaders who left served as mentors and friends, it is our duty to help guide others and not forget the impact they have made in our lives.

Moreover, we think it is important to realize that these individuals did not leave us alone. We still have many other valuable administrators of various ethnicities who have the knowledge and experience to further aid our perception and career development. We should not limit ourselves to certain people, this may be a way for us to reach out of our comfort zones and learn more about the world around us.

"Every interaction makes a difference in the life of a student especially at college."

Continue the legacy.

By Lena Davie, Op/Ed Editor and Allison Anthony

Don't forget to send your letters to
Newswire-oped@xu.edu
Discussion on student volunteerism

"You must be the change you wish to see in the world," Mahatma Gandhi once said. Simply put, if we want to make the world a better place, we all need to do something about it. So, in order to do so, we must become the "best version of ourselves," as Matthew Kelly, the Charismatic Catholic author and world-record speaker, would say. We must awaken the desire to do good that is within us.

A great way to transform ourselves for the better is through service to others. Primary emphasis should be placed on serving one's own community, however it is often the case that the communities outside the United States are in far worse shape than our own. As members of the global community and human family, we all have the responsibility to do our best to eliminate suffering on a global scale.

Sure, donating money to charitable causes is a great thing to do and it can make a world of difference on the receiving end. Yet, there is something magical, sublime, and ultimately nourishing about seeing the look in the eyes of those whom we are serving. In the look in the eyes of those whom we serve, there is something ultimately nourishing about seeing the gift that is within us.

"Primary emphasis should be placed on serving one's own community, however it is often the case that the communities outside the United States are in far worse shape than our own." On campus alone there are numerous opportunities to engage in volunteerism from the Xavier Action group, the mentorship behind Community Action Day, to the Alternative Break Club, which provides service opportunities in various communities in both the United States and abroad during school breaks.

Many local volunteer groups also exist such as Norwood View Elementary School, which provides the opportunity to help Hispanic children improve their English language skills, and Inner City Youth Opportunities, which runs a mentoring program in tennis and a tutoring program in all subjects for inner city students at the levels of K-12. I strongly encourage all who read this article to give of themselves to their communities and, if possible, to our brothers and sisters abroad.

International volunteerism is invaluable. Adding the element of cultural exchange to the healing work of volunteerism, it is a beautiful thing. By serving those of other nations, you can share your culture with them and vice versa. This cultural exchange helps foreigners to understand the United States better and U.S. volunteers to understand foreign cultures better, as well. Also, volunteers can educate others back home about the reality of the nation they served in. American volunteerism can establish a positive relationship between the United States and the country hosting the volunteers, hence promoting world peace and the brotherhood of nations.

Pursuing a Spanish minor, coupled with my passion for service, has compelled me to pursue volunteer opportunities in Costa Rica beginning Dec. 27, 2003. Through our service to the people of San Carlos, Costa Rica over Christmas break, Mark Hoff, Terry Callan and I are confident we will make a difference in the lives of those we serve.

We also hope to engage in cultural exchange, and have a little fun, too. We will do such activities as assisting teachers in a special education school, teaching conversational English, and other subjects that the school is too impoverished to teach, to students...

"We will be doing such activities as assisting teachers in a special education school, teaching conversational English, and other subjects that the school is too impoverished to teach, to students...."

As far as questions are concerned, Hoff, Callan and Gravelle can be reached at extension #8884 or mgravelle@cincizx.com.

—Michael Gravelle
Class of '05

Think fast, think FedEx.

FedEx Ground. Thinking about some fast cash and help with college? Join the fast-paced FedEx Ground team as a part-time Package Handler. You'll work up a sweat. And in return, get a weekly paycheck, tuition assistance and more.

P/T Package Handlers

Qualifications:
- Must be able to lift 50 lbs.
- $9 to $9.50 p/hr to start. Schedules differ depending on location
- Ability to load, unload, sort packages
- 18 years or older
- Part-time, 5-day week

Apply Directly to:
FedEx Ground
9667 Inter-Ocean Drive
Cincinnati, OH 45246

fedex.com/ex/careers

Women and minorities are encouraged to join the team.

---

Discussion on student volunteerism

"You must be the change you wish to see in the world," Mahatma Gandhi once said. Simply put, if we want to make the world a better place, we all need to do something about it. So, in order to do so, we must become the "best version of ourselves," as Matthew Kelly, the Charismatic Catholic author and world-record speaker, would say. We must awaken the desire to do good that is within us.

A great way to transform ourselves for the better is through service to others. Primary emphasis should be placed on serving one's own community, however it is often the case that the communities outside the United States are in far worse shape than our own. As members of the global community and human family, we all have the responsibility to do our best to eliminate suffering on a global scale.

Sure, donating money to charitable causes is a great thing to do and it can make a world of difference on the receiving end. Yet, there is something magical, sublime, and ultimately nourishing about seeing the look in the eyes of those whom you are serving. In the look in the eyes of those whom you serve, there is something ultimately nourishing about seeing the good that is within us.

"Primary emphasis should be placed on serving one's own community, however it is often the case that the communities outside the United States are in far worse shape than our own." On campus alone there are numerous opportunities to engage in volunteerism from the Xavier Action group, the mentorship behind Community Action Day, to the Alternative Break Club, which provides service opportunities in various communities in both the United States and abroad during school breaks.

Many local volunteer groups also exist such as Norwood View Elementary School, which provides the opportunity to help Hispanic children improve their English language skills, and Inner City Youth Opportunities, which runs a mentoring program in tennis and a tutoring program in all subjects for inner city students at the levels of K-12. I strongly encourage all who read this article to give of themselves to their communities and, if possible, to our brothers and sisters abroad.

International volunteerism is invaluable. Adding the element of cultural exchange to the healing work of volunteerism, it is a beautiful thing. By serving those of other nations, you can share your culture with them and vice versa. This cultural exchange helps foreigners to understand the United States better and U.S. volunteers to understand foreign cultures better, as well. Also, volunteers can educate others back home about the reality of the nation they served in. American volunteerism can establish a positive relationship between the United States and the country hosting the volunteers, hence promoting world peace and the brotherhood of nations.

Pursuing a Spanish minor, coupled with my passion for service, has compelled me to pursue volunteer opportunities in Costa Rica beginning Dec. 27, 2003. Through our service to the people of San Carlos, Costa Rica over Christmas break, Mark Hoff, Terry Callan and I are confident we will make a difference in the lives of those we serve.

We also hope to engage in cultural exchange, and have a little fun, too. We will do such activities as assisting teachers in a special education school, teaching conversational English, and other subjects that the school is too impoverished to teach, to students....

"We will be doing such activities as assisting teachers in a special education school, teaching conversational English, and other subjects that the school is too impoverished to teach, to students...."

As far as questions are concerned, Hoff, Callan and Gravelle can be reached at extension #8884 or mgravelle@cincizx.com.

—Michael Gravelle
Class of '05
Men’s golf ranked second in nation, volleyball struggles

BY STEVE METZGER, DAVE GILMORE AND TIM MONTAVON

From wire reports

MEN’S GOLF

The Musketeers golf team has started off this season with stellar play from both upperclassmen and freshmen.

Two weeks ago, the men’s set Xavier’s scoring record by firing a school record 836 at the Mid Pines Intercollegiate, where the Musketeers finished in second place behind University of California.

This weekend, Xavier won the three-round Northern Inter­collegiate, which was held in Ann Arbor, Mich. The Musketeers posted a 1-over 853 and finished 10 strokes ahead of second-place Indiana. Junior Neal Grusczynski was runner-up in the tournament and topped Xavier with a 70.17 stroke average this fall.

Last week Kokrak shared the Rookie-of-the-Week honors with teammate John Streibich. Kmetz earned Rookie-of-the-Week honors in soccer after he had a goal and an assist in the Musketeers’ first win of the season. His first career goal was the game-winner in the Musketeer’s 3-1 victory.

Sato racks up another preseason honor

The annual Athlon Sports College Basketball Magazine, which hit the newsstands this week, lists senior Romain Sato as a preseason First Team All-American. He was also featured on the cover in the Midwest region.

Last month, Sato was named to The John R. Wooden Award Preseason All-American Team for the second straight year. The wooden list included 50 preseason All-American candidates.

In addition, this summer ESPN college basketball analyst Dick Vitale named Sato to his preseason All-Rolls Royce Second Team. Sato ranked fifth in the Atlantic 10 in rebounding and sixth in scoring last season as he earned Atlantic 10 Conference First Team honors. He also won A-10 All-Defensive Team honors for the second straight year.

X-Treme Fiesta

The X-treme Fans are hosting a final watch party outside of the Cintas Center on Saturday before the volleyball match. Chipotle will be served as well as games such as the sombrero toss. The rain site is Kuhinan basement rec room. If 150 students are in attendance for the match one will win a GameWorks party pack.

What’s On Tap?

Wednesday

- Men’s soccer at Cincinnati 7 p.m.

Thursday

- Women’s tennis at Dayton 6 p.m.
- Men’s tennis at Ball State Invite TBA

Friday

- Women’s soccer at Evansville 7 p.m.
- Men’s tennis at Ball State Invite TBA

Saturday

- Volleyball vs. No. 19 Louisville 2 p.m.
- A-10 recognizes Musketeer success

The Atlantic 10 Conference honored two men’s golfers and one men’s soccer player for their performances this past week.

Junior golfer Neal Grusczynski was honored as Performer-of-the-Week while freshman Jason Kokrak earned his second straight Rookie-of-the-Week honor.

In men’s soccer, freshman Matt Kmetz was named Rookie-of-the-Week.

Grusczynski led Xavier to the team title at the Northern Inter­collegiate as he finished as the runner-up. He shot a 4-under 209 for the tournament and leads Xavier with a 70.17 stroke average this fall.

Kokrak was one of three golfers for the match one finished as the runner-up. He shot a 4-under 209 for the tournament and leads Xavier with a 70.17 stroke average this fall.

Last week Kokrak shared the Rookie-of-the-Week honors with teammate John Streibich. Kmetz earned Rookie-of-the-Week honors in soccer after he had a goal and an assist in the Musketeers’ first win of the season. His first career goal was the game-winner in the Musketeer’s 3-1 victory.

Xavier women’s tennis

The Xavier women’s tennis team competed at the Akron Invitational on Friday and Saturday. The Musketeers turned in a number of strong performances in both singles and doubles.

Sophomore Emily Uteschetter was 4-0 in B singles with all four victories coming in straight sets including a 6-3, 6-4 defeat of teammate Jackie Vilines in the final. Vilines went 3-1 in B singles for the Musketeers.

C singles included the same scenario for Xavier as Kate Lobner and Sarah Potts met in the final. Lobner came out victorious with a 6-4, 6-4 defeat of Potts. Lobner finished the Invitational at 4-0 while Potts was 2-1.

In other doubles action, Vilines and Lober were 1-1 which included an 8-6, 1-0 defeat of IUPUI.

The Musketeers return to action next Saturday at the Bowling Green Invitational. Continued on page 9...

A-10 recognizes Musketeer success

The Atlantic 10 Conference honored two men’s golfers and one men’s soccer player for their performances this past week.

Junior golfer Neal Grusczynski was honored as Performer-of-the-Week while freshman Jason Kokrak earned his second straight Rookie-of-the-Week honor.

In men’s soccer, freshman Matt Kmetz was named Rookie-of-the-Week.

Grusczynski led Xavier to the team title at the Northern Inter­collegiate as he finished as the runner-up. He shot a 4-under 209 for the tournament and leads Xavier with a 70.17 stroke average this fall.

Kokrak was one of three golfers for the match one finished as the runner-up. He shot a 4-under 209 for the tournament and leads Xavier with a 70.17 stroke average this fall.

Last week Kokrak shared the Rookie-of-the-Week honors with teammate John Streibich. Kmetz earned Rookie-of-the-Week honors in soccer after he had a goal and an assist in the Musketeers’ first win of the season. His first career goal was the game-winner in the Musketeer’s 3-1 victory.

Xavier women’s tennis

The Xavier women’s tennis team competed at the Akron Invitational on Friday and Saturday. The Musketeers turned in a number of strong performances in both singles and doubles.

Sophomore Emily Uteschetter was 4-0 in B singles with all four victories coming in straight sets including a 6-3, 6-4 defeat of teammate Jackie Vilines in the final. Vilines went 3-1 in B singles for the Musketeers.

C singles included the same scenario for Xavier as Kate Lobner and Sarah Potts met in the final. Lobner came out victorious with a 6-4, 6-4 defeat of Potts. Lobner finished the Invitational at 4-0 while Potts was 2-1.

In other doubles action, Vilines and Lober were 1-1 which included an 8-6, 1-0 defeat of IUPUI.

The Musketeers return to action next Saturday at the Bowling Green Invitational. Continued on page 9...

A-10 recognizes Musketeer success

The Atlantic 10 Conference honored two men’s golfers and one men’s soccer player for their performances this past week.

Junior golfer Neal Grusczynski was honored as Performer-of-the-Week while freshman Jason Kokrak earned his second straight Rookie-of-the-Week honor.

In men’s soccer, freshman Matt Kmetz was named Rookie-of-the-Week.

Grusczynski led Xavier to the team title at the Northern Inter­collegiate as he finished as the runner-up. He shot a 4-under 209 for the tournament and leads Xavier with a 70.17 stroke average this fall.

Kokrak was one of three golfers for the match one finished as the runner-up. He shot a 4-under 209 for the tournament and leads Xavier with a 70.17 stroke average this fall.

Last week Kokrak shared the Rookie-of-the-Week honors with teammate John Streibich. Kmetz earned Rookie-of-the-Week honors in soccer after he had a goal and an assist in the Musketeers’ first win of the season. His first career goal was the game-winner in the Musketeer’s 3-1 victory.

Xavier women’s tennis

The Xavier women’s tennis team competed at the Akron Invitational on Friday and Saturday. The Musketeers turned in a number of strong performances in both singles and doubles.

Sophomore Emily Uteschetter was 4-0 in B singles with all four victories coming in straight sets including a 6-3, 6-4 defeat of teammate Jackie Vilines in the final. Vilines went 3-1 in B singles for the Musketeers.

C singles included the same scenario for Xavier as Kate Lobner and Sarah Potts met in the final. Lobner came out victorious with a 6-4, 6-4 defeat of Potts. Lobner finished the Invitational at 4-0 while Potts was 2-1.

In other doubles action, Vilines and Lober were 1-1 which included an 8-6, 1-0 defeat of IUPUI.

The Musketeers return to action next Saturday at the Bowling Green Invitational. Continued on page 9...

A-10 recognizes Musketeer success

The Atlantic 10 Conference honored two men’s golfers and one men’s soccer player for their performances this past week.

Junior golfer Neal Grusczynski was honored as Performer-of-the-Week while freshman Jason Kokrak earned his second straight Rookie-of-the-Week honor.

In men’s soccer, freshman Matt Kmetz was named Rookie-of-the-Week.

Grusczynski led Xavier to the team title at the Northern Inter­collegiate as he finished as the runner-up. He shot a 4-under 209 for the tournament and leads Xavier with a 70.17 stroke average this fall.

Kokrak was one of three golfers for the match one finished as the runner-up. He shot a 4-under 209 for the tournament and leads Xavier with a 70.17 stroke average this fall.

Last week Kokrak shared the Rookie-of-the-Week honors with teammate John Streibich. Kmetz earned Rookie-of-the-Week honors in soccer after he had a goal and an assist in the Musketeers’ first win of the season. His first career goal was the game-winner in the Musketeer’s 3-1 victory.

Xavier women’s tennis

The Xavier women’s tennis team competed at the Akron Invitational on Friday and Saturday. The Musketeers turned in a number of strong performances in both singles and doubles.

Sophomore Emily Uteschetter was 4-0 in B singles with all four victories coming in straight sets including a 6-3, 6-4 defeat of teammate Jackie Vilines in the final. Vilines went 3-1 in B singles for the Musketeers.

C singles included the same scenario for Xavier as Kate Lobner and Sarah Potts met in the final. Lobner came out victorious with a 6-4, 6-4 defeat of Potts. Lobner finished the Invitational at 4-0 while Potts was 2-1.

In other doubles action, Vilines and Lober were 1-1 which included an 8-6, 1-0 defeat of IUPUI.

The Musketeers return to action next Saturday at the Bowling Green Invitational. Continued on page 9...
XU sports wrap-up

Continued from page 8.

MEN’S TENNIS
The Xavier men’s tennis team wrapped up a successful two days at the Eastern Illinois Invitational on Saturday afternoon as two singles players went 4-0 along with two undefeated doubles teams.

Xavier’s men’s tennis team returns to the court on Friday as they head to Muncie, Ind. for the Ball State Invitational.

MEN’S SOCCER
The Xavier men’s soccer team played to a 0-0 overtime tie at Valparaiso on Sunday afternoon.

It is the first tie of the season for the Musketeers, who now stand at 1-6-1. Valpo out-shot Xavier 18-15, but both teams had just four shots on goal in the match.

Junior goalkeeper Brian Schaepker made four saves for Xavier as he recorded his seventh career shutout.

The shutout is the first for Xavier this season. Last year the Musketeers recorded a school-record eight shutouts.

The Musketeers will return to action on Wednesday night at the University of Cincinnati.

XU students invited to Miami-UC game

BY DAVE GILMORE

Miami University Associated Student Government President Michael Chapman announced Tuesday that he has invited the Xavier University student body to attend the Miami vs. Cincinnati football game for free with a student ID at 5 p.m. this Saturday.

In addition to the free admission to the game, Xavier students will have their first chance to order tickets to the Xavier vs. Miami basketball game slated for Dec. 9 at Millennium Hall in Oxford. The first 100 people purchasing tickets to the Miami-Xavier basketball game at Yager Stadium will also receive a free T-shirt with the slogan “Go RedHawks...’X’ out the Bearcats!”

The two student body presidents will also be working together to encourage their brethren student organizations to coordinate events in Oxford the day of the game.

This Saturday’s game between the University of Cincinnati (3-0, 0-0 C-USA) and Miami University (2-1, 0-0 MAC) will be the 108th meeting between the two schools, who are both receiving votes in the AP and USA Today/ESPN polls.

Miami has won the last two games and owns a 57-43-7 edge in the all-time series. Last year, the RedHawks traveled to Nippert Stadium and beat the Bearcats, 31-26, with the fake field goal play called “The Hootenanny.”

The rivalry game, known as the “Battle for the Victory Bell,” features two of the nation’s top quarterbacks in Ben Roethlisberger of Miami and Gino Guidugli of Cincinnati.

The rivalry game, known as the “Battle for the Victory Bell,” features two of the nation’s top quarterbacks in Ben Roethlisberger of Miami and Gino Guidugli of Cincinnati.

Dave Rants

“All about the Benjamins”

BY DAVE GILMORE

Senior Sports Writer

Just about one year ago I was making the eight-hour jaunt from my home near Baltimore to Xavier for the beginning of my sophomore year.

It was a Saturday. It was the first Saturday of the college football season. Listening to ESPN Radio almost the entire drive, I was bombarded with the results of the Ohio State-Texas Tech game.

Apparently this kid Maurice Clarett had made his first start as a true freshman running back, had rushed for 175 yards and three TDs. Fast forward to September 2003. In that short period of a year, Clarett helped the Buckeyes to a national championship, got accused of academic fraud, allegedly blew off a meeting with Hall of Famer Marcus Allen, lied to police and was subsequently suspended for the 2003 season.

Now it wouldn’t be fair to jump in and say Clarett is not at fault here. He knew he was driving a car he shouldn’t have been in, he knew he was getting help on tests that was not allowed, and he had the opportunity to tell the police the truth when an SUV he was driving (reportedly lent from a dealer) was stolen.

Yes, the first true freshman to generate any Heisman hype in a long while has dug his own grave with the NCAA, and yesterday’s legal battle filed against the NFL to allow him to enter the 2004 draft a year early isn’t winning him any more friends.

But is it not possible that Clarett is a product of what college athletics has become? And how long has this been going on?

Just now we are learning about the transgressions of Auburn University during the early-mid ’90s under Terry Bowden.

How many big-name players such as Clarett have been violating NCAA rules with gifts, academic help and preferential treatment?

The actions of Clarett and other big-name college players in the past such as Chris Webber often bring up the debate that universities or the NCAA should pay college athletes.

After all, don’t the universities and the NCAA make all their money off football and basketball players.

While revenue is generated among athletic programs primarily from football and basketball games, that does not mean the players should be compensated any further than they already are.

Hanging out a slap on the wrist to Maryland earlier in the year for giving a top recruit hundreds of dollars in gifts was not enough to send a message.

Even as a biased Maryland fan, I understand the punishment did not fit the crime.

If the NCAA and its prominent universities are going to come down on coaches for going to strip clubs and throwing money into a March Madness pool, then they need to take a long hard look at the myriad industry where many of the employees don’t see the value in what they’re given in return for playing a game.

There are proponents of a pay-for-play system that claim college players are being “exploited” by their respective universities because they are not compensated for their services.

To be honest, if I got to play a Division-I sport and go to college for free, I wouldn’t be complaining.

Maurice Clarett’s days at OSU may be all but over, but his effect on college athletics could prove to be long-lasting.
"Cold Creek Manor": not so hot of a movie

The most recent crop of horror thriller movies has been a pretty diverse group. However, "Cold Creek Manor" falls somewhere in the middle of the pack.

On one side, you have movies that fail at being scary, such as "Jeepers Creepers II." On the other side, you have films that will scare the hell out of you, like "28 Days Later." "CCM" takes the middle road in this instance, providing nothing more than a missed opportunity.

"Manor" is the story of the Tillsons, a New York City family caught in the middle of the instant city life. Cooper (Dee Quaid, "Any Given Sunday") is a happy and dedicated father who is passionate about making documentary films. Leah, his wife, (Sharon Stone, "Casino") is a businesswoman trying to climb the corporate ladder. Their two children, Kristen and Jesse (Kristen Stewart, "Panic Room" and Ryan Wilson, "Just Ask My Children," respectively), are normal New York City kids.

The Tillsons seem to be perfectly happy with life in the Big Apple until Jesse is nearly killed when hit by a car. The near death of her son prompts Leah's desire to get away from the city life, so the Tillsons pile into their SUV and head off to look for greener pastures.

Cooper and Leah are thrilled with the idea of leaving the city. The kids, however, are not so thrilled, so it is until they visit Cold Creek Manor.

The huge, creepy, dilapidated house is somehow charming enough to push all thoughts of city life from their minds. With thoughts of the city behind them, the Tillsons begin making CC&M their home.

The first sign of controversy is the state of the house itself: it's broken down and dirty, yet is littered with personal possessions, and appears as though it had been occupied as recently as the day before.

The house is full of pictures, videos, clothing, maps, and other assorted items. Cooper is fascinated and sets out to do what he does best — make a documentary about it.

Leah, on the other hand, wants to make the house into a home. In order to keep the two kids out of the way of the restoration process, and most likely to keep them from missing the city, Cooper and Leah buy them a pony, and out of the picture they ride.

As the Tillsons begin restoration on their new estate, out of the woods wanders the incredibly creepy and suspicious-looking former owner of CCM. Dale Massie (Stephen Dorff, "Blade") makes himself right at home for dinner and reveals that he was sent to prison, losing the property when the bank foreclosed on it.

Dennis Quaid and Sharon Stone are acting scared, but after the uneventful thrills of "Cold Creek Manor," the only thing frightening about this film is the ticket price.

Feeling sorry for him, the couple gives him a job helping with the restorations. That's when all the problems begin.

Things begin happening at the house that are a bit out of the ordinary, such as a rattlesnake in a swimming pool. Cooper thinks Dale is behind all of the mishaps, but Leah tells him to stop being so suspicious.

Pretty soon, it's clear Dale is in fact trying to drive the Tillsons off the property, stealing them wherever they go.

Both Dale and Cooper are too stubborn to give in to the other. Cooper refuses to be driven away, and Dale won't let them live in peace at CCM.

Finally, in what can only be described as an incident of pure dumb luck, Cooper discovers why Dale has been so anxious to get them away from Cold Creek Manor. When Dale realizes his secret is out of the bag, he attempts to clean up the mess he made.

"Cold Creek Manor" is a deceiving movie. It's being billed as a suspenseful thriller, unfortunately it is neither suspenseful, nor thrilling.

One of the biggest disappointments (and greatest annoyances) is how the movie spends significant amounts of time creating build-up, but not following. The movie just moves on with little actually occurring.

"Cold Creek Manor" also fails to create any of the really frighting moments that are expected. The film's failure was cemented when most of the audience laughed rather than jumped at a scene that was meant to have an especially high fright factor.

Director Mike Figgis ("Leaving Las Vegas") could have had a promising movie on his hands if he hadn't let the film become derivative. Pretty much everything about "Manor" comes from the standard thriller cookie cutter.

The characters themselves are little more than genre stereotypes. Quaid as the father is out to protect his family from the creepy intruder, who feels he was wronged by life. Stone's Leah is the mother who has taken things for granted and realizes her naivete only when it is threatened.

Nearly two hours long, "Manor" actually feels even longer. The pace drags for the first two-thirds of the film, then speeds up only slightly for the remainder.

The film's brightest spot is its stars. While "Manor" isn't nearly as good as Quaid's most recent ventures such as "The Rock" and "From Heaven," he still gives his all to the part, despite playing a flat character. Stone's Leah is the mother who has taken things for granted and realizes her naivete only when it is threatened.

The film's brightest spot is its stars. While "Manor" isn't nearly as good as Quaid's most recent ventures such as "The Rock" and "From Heaven," he still gives his all to the part, despite playing a flat character. Stone's Leah is the mother who has taken things for granted and realizes her naivete only when it is threatened.

The film's brightest spot is its stars. While "Manor" isn't nearly as good as Quaid's most recent ventures such as "The Rock" and "From Heaven," he still gives his all to the part, despite playing a flat character. Stone's Leah is the mother who has taken things for granted and realizes her naivete only when it is threatened.

The film's brightest spot is its stars. While "Manor" isn't nearly as good as Quaid's most recent ventures such as "The Rock" and "From Heaven," he still gives his all to the part, despite playing a flat character. Stone's Leah is the mother who has taken things for granted and realizes her naivete only when it is threatened.

The film's brightest spot is its stars. While "Manor" isn't nearly as good as Quaid's most recent ventures such as "The Rock" and "From Heaven," he still gives his all to the part, despite playing a flat character. Stone's Leah is the mother who has taken things for granted and realizes her naivete only when it is threatened.
Anything else but ‘Anything Else’

BY JAY ARMS
Contribute Writer

Every once in a while, a film comes along that warms our hearts while also moving us nearly to tears, even giving us the opportunity to laugh.

Sadly, this is not one of those films.

Woody Allen’s latest offering, “Anything Else,” had all the makings of a romantic comedy—one for the ages even: great writing, good jokes and big-name actors. However, it falls short in a couple of key areas, thus leaving something to be desired by Mr. and Mrs. Moviegoer.

This tale concerns comedy writer Jerry Falk, played by Jason Biggs (“American Pie”) and his older public-school-teacher-turned-comedy-writer mentor David Dobel, played by the incomparable Allen (“Annie Hall”), who also wrote and directed the film.

When Falk meets and falls in love with Amanda, played by Christina Ricci (“Sleepy Hollow”), who is an “anything else girl,” Dobel helps Falk through their chaotic relationship.

The term “anything else girl” refers to a woman who requires a lot of attention, leaving her significant other to ask many times, “Anything else?”

As stated before, Allen’s script is great. It has wit, charm and a good romantic story. However, Biggs strikes again, making this script his latest victim.

Biggs’ tendency to deliver his lines in an emotionless, perfunctory manner may have been enough to make people laugh when he was copulating with a pie, but when it comes to a movie in which actual acting skills are required, the viewer feels cheated by his performance.

At one point, there is a fight scene between the vampire clan and at the next, vampires are being stalked by scary and ferocious werewolves. The movie’s excitement level never falls from the opening scene of the movie, keeping the audience involved and interested.

The plot is marred by the existence of werewolves and vampires, yet is, in almost all aspects, complete.

This movie finds its roots in the gangster film genre, and if it were not for the supernatural state of its members, it might strive for more filmic values and morals.

However, “Underworld” makes no excuses, offering up an interesting history between the two clans and throwing viewers through plot twists.

With that being said, the relationships between the members of the vampire clan are interesting. Kraven and Selene are at odds with one another. Selene is in the mold of an old-fashioned vampire. Kraven on the other hand, is more concerned with the politics of running an efficient vampire family. Although, the dynamics of the family are put in the context of vampires, the storyline is still interesting.

Beckinsale’s character is enjoyable to watch. Selene is a hard-nosed warrior who the audience—especially the male portion—is anticipating the glimpse of a softer side.

However, you can rest assured that this will never happen. Selene’s jaded history forces her toconcentrate on killing lycans, instead of looking good for vampire parties.

The rest of the plot is sometimes silly, as should be expected from a movie where werewolves are battling vampires. However, Wiseman lets debuting screenwriter and superstar werewolf Kevin Grevioux—yes, he stars in the movie and wrote it—unfold the story nicely.

At times, the movie is too dark, appearing to be shot in black and white. However, the scenes and sets are wonderfully decorated and the dreariness of the rain-soaked city is brought out.

There’s no sense of time in the movie. Since vampires and werewolves only come out at night, all of the scenes are shot at night, usually in the rain.

The type of lighting and shots seen in this film, used in other films, leaves the audience with the feeling that “Underworld” stole from other dark action movies like “The Crow” and “The Matrix.”

Perhaps it borrowed some of the action scenes from “The Matrix”—what recent action movie hasn’t—but “Underworld’s” $23 million budget more than suffices, giving the audience just the right mix of summer action fun, segued with some October frights.
Calgary City

By Dan Arbeznik. To place an item in the calendar, mail to newswire-calendar@classifiedsiv.com or ML 2129.

Wednesday September 24

When I was growing up, I was never allowed to watch TV on the weekdays. We had neither microwave, nor game system nor VCR, and I was the official president and acting head of the No Cable Club. In short: I was not allowed to be cool. As we all know, when one is deprived of something for so long, then are eventually allowed to indulge, it often leads to fatal consequences. Thus is the tale of me with television, just as it was with Marv Albert and biting prostitutes while wearing women’s lingerie. (Nothing as funny as said am I right?) Any way, whenever Saturday mornings would roll around I would sit for hours on end, ravenously soaking up a week’s dose of culture in five measly hours. From “Land of the Lost” to “Family Matters” to “Garfield and Friends,” I soon developed a circle of mentors who were able to teach me the “Facts of Life.”

Don’t believe me? Everything I ever knew to come from those shows. Remember when Jessie Spano started taking pills to keep awake in class? She could get all work of her done in the hopes of one day enrolling herself at Stanford? Zack Attack called her to the moment and axayed her overdose. I learned to heed Zack’s advice, and you should too. When you go the special ESL Coffee Hour at 3:30 p.m. on 33rd Ledgewood, don’t go “bee” (yes, I am in fact talking on the cafe). Speaking of this gang from “Saved by the Bell,” why don’t you go to our very own Kelley Kapowski Auditorium today at 4 p.m. to “The Witness.” Now I’m probably blatantly misquoting him, but I believe music connoisseur Aria D Basa once claimed the movie was so good, it made him want to “impale myself with a sweet stick.” pulse all over the floor and kick it up to savor the flavor. You know, from the looks of Aria’s reviews, he often inflicts maximum amounts of pain upon himself. And knowing his level of dedication, it’s only a matter of time before he needs a blood transfusion and/or lobbyky. If you don’t know what he can do about the second, but you can in fact help him out with the first. Go blood today for the Xavier University Blood Drive.

Thursday September 25

At the same time, you’ll have the chance to observe me smashing the competition in the field of “Simpsons” Trivia.

Today is Founder’s Day here at Xavier University, in honor of our founder, Saint Francis Xavier. Now to make you remember the man, I’ve ripped off a little song for you to remember him by. The man was flashing and daring,经营范围 and caring, faithful and friendly, with Jesus to share. All through the Far East he’d sing out about World Peace preaching around as his sermon filled the air.

Friday September 26

“The Beverly Hillbillies” premiered on this day in 1962, which reminds me: Listen to my story about a man named Dan. Poor editor rarely paid Column Man, then one day he was putting out an issue, and out from the staff, they yelled “Hey Thats, that’s Against his life. Haha. Don’t worry, Dan, we’re just kidding, unless you don’t pay us.”

Sunday September 28

Although I had previously believed-locked John Pepper to be dead, Bogart’s present an evening with Blues Traveler. That guy always gives me the runaround.

Monday September 29

Today we celebrate “Banned Book Week.” Coincidentally, I think we’re right in the middle of local “Display Your Shopping Cart Decade” here in Norwood. It coincides directly with regional “Park Your Car on Your Front Lawn” decade as well. Don’t know what’s going on with that. All I know is that a veritable blockade of shopping carts have arisen on our neighbors’ sidewalks.

Tuesday September 30

Fellow shuttlegroupie Brian would like to remind you that there is Earthcare Meeting at the Dorothy Day House at 6 p.m. Dress code will be strictly enforced. No one admitted without sandals, tied-shirt, frayed cargo shorts, and bandana.

Classifieds

Travel

Spring Break — sign up with Student Express and get FREE round trip airline tickets to over 15 international destinations — including Aruba, Dominican Republic, and Costa Rica, Caribbean hot spots and more. Why go with anyone else? Limited offer — call 513-933-5588.

For classifieds info call Mary PIT, PIANO PLAYERS with 4+ years experience. We supply materials - $18/HR + Bonuses. For classifieds info call Mary.

Help Wanted

Tutor in geometry, biology/chemistry and reading, for 9th grade girl. Near Madeira, start as soon as possible. Days and times to be agreed, compensation negotiable. For 2 and 3-year-olds, plus light housework, in Hyde Park. 10-15 hours/week. Call Mirja at 871-9832.

For Rent

Beautifful mansion on Dana Ave, a few-minute walk to campus. Eight bedrooms, three bathrooms, spacious, fully equipped kitchen. Parking spaces and lots of storage. Washer and dryer. Call 321-0043 or 616-3798.

Attention graduate students and upperclassmen! Must see renovated 3 bedroom apartment. Near Xavier University and Rookwood. All utilities paid. Call Matt for information at 333-1192.

Discounts

CRC Golf Courses offering College Student Rates! $5 off 18 holes or $3 off 9 holes. Monday thru Thursday 11 a.m. - 3 p.m. and Friday thru Sunday after 1 p.m. Call 513-651-GOLF or visit www.crcgolf.org.

European Summer Study Program

Maastricht, the Netherlands

May 17 to June 14, 2003

- Spend 4 weeks in Europe
- Live and study at the University of Maastricht in the Netherlands
- Earn 6 credit hours
- Travel with Xavier students and faculty
- Visit European businesses and organizations

Information Session

Monday, September 29, 2003
1:30 to 2:45 p.m. Hallstones Hall #19

For more information contact: Cindy Stockwell or Claudia Flading Hallstones Hall, 2nd Floor, Phone: 745-3131.