Underclassmen Sponsor Series of Festivities

A shower of farewell festivities honoring the graduates concluded the year's activities at Edgecliff.

The freshmen were hostesses to the graduates at a luncheon at the Hotel Gibson on Saturday, May 29.

Baccalaureate services were held in the chapel on Sunday, May 30. The Rev. Monsignor Charles E. Baden, college chaplain, was celebrant of the Mass and the Rev. Francis J. Kunnecke, sociology instructor, at the college, presided at the sermon.

After the Mass the graduates were enrolled in the Alumni as a baccalaureate-sponsored group at the Kemper Lane hotel.

Closing day activities on Monday, May 31, began with the Dairy Chain ceremony, the College Ring, and the unveiling of the class picture. Rosemary Cox, president of the Student Council, planted the eighth of the series of rosesbushes that have been placed on the lawn of the Back Campus by graduates of each graduating class.

The traditional sophomore garden party took place on the Back Campus on Monday evening. The affair consisted of a buffet lunch followed by a candlelight ceremony between the college and the outdoor stage.

At commencement exercises this evening, candidates for degrees were presented to the Most Rev. Archbishop John Kunnecke, sociology instructor, at the college, president of the Cincinnati faculty honoring the graduates concluded the year's activities at Edgecliff.

URGES YOUNG PEOPLE TO "DON'T BE DIFFERENT"

By Mary Kay Koehler

The Rev. Rev. Mag. Fulton, college chaplain, delivered an informal visit to the college during his recent stay in Cincinnati. He addressed members of the community and the resident students in the college auditorium on Thursday evening, May 20.

"There is no different," says Mag. Sheen, and oddly enough he puts the emphasis on the "not." St. Alice's speaking of the tastes and ideas of the ideal Catholic young person as being so difficult from the point of view, that it would amount to nothing less than a revolution to bring the crowd around to our way of thinking. Our very background should make us different. Even the things we enjoy should be different. Everyone is looking for someone with the courage to be master of his convictions. We are different enough, he says, when we are engaging in some religious exercise. Then we are manifestly Catholics. But look in on us in the drugstore after we speak of the tastes and ideas of the ideal Catholic young person as being so difficult to define. Without the idea of what is right and what is wrong, it is impossible to be different. In the peace. The same justice, can be traced to that same hand of Christ at what the other members of the senior class.

RE. JANET DILLON

Members of the faculty and students of Edgecliff recently congratulated the Rev. John Dillon, college religion instructor and pastor of St. Rose's church, Cincinnati, on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of his ordination. The college and the college Choral group sang at the anniversary Mass in St. Rose's Church May 21.

Six Seniors Receive Honor Awards

Six seniors received awards at commencement exercises.

Membership in the Kappa Gamma Pi sorority, national students' honor group, went to Rosemary Cox. Mary Lee Ast was named winner of a scholarship to the Plymouth Drama Festival, Plymouth, Mass. Mary Frances Walter, editor of the Edgecliffian, was awarded the Catholic Social Science Press award. The senior with the highest grade point average was chosen as the senior with the highest grade point average. The senior with the most athletic ability was chosen as the senior with the highest grade point average. Influence of Graduates Can Be Powerful, Says Commencement Speaker

Mary Lee Ast Chosen In Poll

Mary Lee Ast was chosen as the "graduate most likely to succeed" in a poll conducted by the Edgecliffian. It was the first such poll taken at the college.

Although Miss Ast received the highest number of votes, a tribute to the manifest abilities of all the members of the graduating class is seen in the fact that each senior received a substantial number of votes.

Concluding from the close vote that the other members of the class are worthy of a "most" designation, the Edgecliff staff chose fitting descriptions for the other members of the senior class.

Rosemary Cox was named "most active"; Anna Mae German, "most dependable"; Mary Jane Knobloch, "most talented"; Helen Leilani, "most practical"; Marjorie Ruff, "most efficient"; Adele Wodel, "most versatile"; and Frances Mary Walter, "most persistent".

Claire Bastaan Named College Club President

The International Relations club concluded its activities for the year with a business meeting on May 18. The officers elected for the coming year are Claire Bastaan, president; Mary Ellen Banger, vice-president; Betty Brune, secretary; and Patricia Perrine, treasurer.

Pan-American Club Elects New Officers

The second senior to hold the office of president in the very young Pan-American club is Ruth Smith. Other officers are: secretary, Patricia Perrine; treasurer, Jyne Schroeder.

TO BE CO-EDITORS

Miriam Stauberg Mary Katherine Koebler

The blue pencil of Mary Frances Walter, 1942-43 editor of the Edgecliffian, will be held by two hands next year, those of Miriam Stauberg (left), and Mary Katherine Koebler. Both have been members of the Edgecliff staff since their freshman year. In the past year they have served as associate editors.

Summer Session To Begin June 21

Edgecliff's summer session, which begins June 21 and ends July 21, offers classes in English, music, business language, science, and philosophy.

Students may obtain as many as ten credits in the course. The summer session is not intended as an accelerated course, but is to serve as an accommodation for students who wish to gain additional credits.

Instructors will be the Rev. Msgr. Joseph W. Steipers; Sister Rose Agnes, Sister Mary Winifred, Sister Mary Constance; Dr. Daniel H. Shelbe; Dr. Louis Belal, and Miss Jane Glenn.
Graduation Message
To the Class of 1943:
It is my privilege to offer you today, the congratulations and warmest wishes of the faculty of the College in celebration of your graduation. With fidelity and enthusiasm you have accomplished the task that was laid upon you. For each of you the coveted honor of a bachelor's degree. Happy are we, indeed, to know that all our efforts and hopes have been realized. And, now as you leave us to go separate ways, may you be able to perceive that life, as it unfolds before you, may bring to you the fulfillment of the dreams of college life. Bitter are the darkness and put your hand into the hand of God...

Dear Graduates of the Class of 1943:
Commencement marks the satisfaction of a task completed. . . So in the College of Our Lady of the Daley... the beckoning years! These are your thoughts as well as with many others you will receive the awards for which you have given your best efforts through four years of college. With a mother's pride and father's joy and interest we have followed your collegiate endeavors: your progress in studies, extra-curricular program, and your growth in the intellectual virtues of wisdom, understanding, and knowledge. It has been written, "Consider us, and know all the little disappointments as well as the great wins of the next few days. Dig deep, dear College! . . . Dig, but don't let an issue be let.

To the Class of 1943:
We look forward with happiness to the coming years. Your problems will be different, but your greatest need will be the same. We hope to see a successful life for each of you. We have followed your collegiate endeavors, and we commend you once more to her protection. May Our Lady of the Daley watch over each of you and give you the strength and wisdom you will need. May God keep you and bless you, our children of the College of Our Lady of the Daley.

P R A Y E R, work, and play, in the order named, occupy the students of Edgecliff. One of the highlights of the students' spiritual activities is the May Crowning ceremony. At left, above, Anna Mae Gerbua, president of the 1943 senior class, is shown at the right of the statue of Our Lady as she places the crown upon the statue. In the center picture Marjorie Ruff (left) and Adele Wadel, chemistry majors, are shown at work in the chemistry laboratory. They hope to follow in the footsteps of four members of last year's class, Mary Huester, Rita Feldman, Ethel Gardner, and Elizabeth Diukis, who now have positions in industrial laboratories. Plans for the annual Play Day are the object of the concentration of the group at right. Mr. Thomas Kane (left), radio technique instructor, and Dr. Daniel Steible, English instructor, seem to approve of the plans being considered by Jane Schroeder, Betty Kiernan, Jane Biedenharn, and Mildred Fischer.

PRESENTING EDGECLIFF’S 1943 GRADUATES

The contributions made by this ambitious senior to her beloved Alma Mater are many and varied and testify to four years of loyal and generous service. An imposing roster of successes on the Edgecliff stage illustrate a keen interest in the theater, and though we’re not attempting predictions, we insist that "Lee" will continue to do bigger and better things.

Should she attempt the "banking business," we’d bet our "bottom dollar" on this junior-senior class treasurer to keep the coins rolling in.

If "club" activities lure her from other diversions, this "old hand" at such activities will be able to back her work with wide experience she has gained in heading the Edgecliff Players, and the Literary Guild, to say nothing of her membership in the CSMC, International Relations club, and Pan-American club.

Mary Lee Cast, B.A.

Introducing Rosemary Cox—

And speaking of "doing things", Rosemary really did them. Her years at Edgecliff display a panorama of activities typical of the ambitious collegienne. In addition to her profound interest in things theatrical, she was also attracted also by the glamour of history. Not content with just studying history, she also made a bit of it. As president of Student Council during her senior year, she left for the records a brilliant and successful career. And should the nations become too hopelessly involved for even the most capable of diplomats, we’d suggest their contacting this resigning International Relations club president. Her public addresses and deep concern in worldly affairs are famous on the campus and indicate latent talent. This talent was evidenced also in such extra-curricular diversions as the CSMC, Pan-American club, Edgecliff Players, and the Choral group.

Auditioning Anna Mae Gerbis—

We don’t like to use stock adjectives but we find such... adjectives as "capable, efficient, dependable" applying to this personable senior to a T. She successfully managed her junior and senior classes through such triumphs and trials as the Prom and the Senior Ball substitute, which hit a new high in campus coup d’etats. Anna Mae can do most everything, and she’s one of those rare individuals who does them all very well. Active membership in the Choral group, CSMC, Pan-American club, the Camera club, and her scenery contributions to the Edgecliff productions were acclaimed masterpieces in the "campus mural society".

In Review—Mary Jane Knochel

If it’s possible to sing one’s way through college, Mary Jane did it. And she sang her way into the heart of her Alma Mater. Gifted with a lovely voice, she unselfishly gave of herself in campus musicales and concerts and graced such occasions as the Junior Prom and the Sodality breakfasts with her delightful solos. A contradiction in character, our amiable Mary Jane could scare the best of us with her demoniac impersonations in our Edgecliff "first nights".

As another busy student, Mary Jane found time to direct the One-Act Play tournament to a successful finale for her class for two successive years. As president of the Choral group, she gave valuable assistance. Her interests were also with such groups as the Pan-American club, Edgecliff Players, and the CSMC.

Calculating Helen L. Saint-

If we were to give you all the "facts and figures" about this senior you’d have to agree that we were grammatically and mathematically correct. Helen sees things through her calculating eye and the solutions she proffered for many a class crisis were ever an occasion for frolic. Helen could probably map out the distance between the lounge and a certain room in Emery better than any campus trotter yet, and the reason—never-ending math classes.

Backing up the senior class president, Helen was a valuable and dependable "second front" as acting vice president. Her cheerity and perseverance were (Continued on Page 6)
