Tradition is the order of the season and the seniors are the women of the hour as all attention is focused on commencement and related events. Activities that, in print, are just another part of the academic year, take on, for the seniors especially, the aspect of long and long-to-be-remembered ceremonies. Songs and tributes and farewell parties change last year's self-assured and slightly blase underclassmen into today's transitional graduates.

Baccalaureate Sunday

The curricular day was rung up with the annual Senior Mass celebrated by Father Hilary Ahrens, O. P, rector of the Philosophy department, in the college chapel on May 23. This was followed by a breakfast given by the freshmen home economics class in Keary.

Fresman Luncheon

The freshmen were hostesses again, but this time at a luncheon in honor of the seniors at the Hotel Gibson on June 2. The dominant theme of this affair was the big sister-little sister "relationship" between the freshmen and seniors; each freshman individually proposed a toast to her own big sister.

Senior Mass

On June 2, Baccalaureate Sunday, the Solemn Mass in the college chapel was celebrated and assisted at by priest-relatives of the seniors. The graduates also attended the Mass and watched their solemn daughters as they marched in procession into the chapel to the triumphant chords of Pomp and Circumstance.

Alma Mater Banquet

Later on Baccalaureate Sunday the seniors were the guests of honor at the alumnus homecoming banquet in the college dining hall. At this time they also became members of the alumnus association.

Speaker Compares Life To A Painting

The Rev. Henry D. Naber, "Life can be likened to the painting of one's own indelible portrait on the canvas of time," was the featured speaker at a banquet at the Kappa Gamma Pi House last night in his commencement address to the graduates. He declared that "in the hands of the graduates alone, is entrusted the portrait of their lives—theirs that are but a sum of their years—theirs that will live on the canvas of time, because they have the power of the brush to paint it all to life."

National Kappa Convention

To Be Held June 21 To 24

Kappa Gamma Pi, honorary Catholic sorority, will hold its national convention in Cincinnati at the Hotel Netherland Plaza June 21 to 24, it was announced recently by Miss Sally Sue Thompson, president of the Cincinnati chapter.

First Graduate Assistant Niece

At the first Edgcliff commencement in 1938 when Adele Pohl, the sole graduate, received her degree, she wore her niece, Rosemary Dale, then aged five, carried her aunt's diploma, and strolled in the Catholic Seminary, dressed in the Order of Dakota, and given to Archbishop John T. McCarthy, who in turn presented it to Adele. Adele, who is now Mrs. Daniel McLaughlin, niece of Father Edgcliff, delivered the address at the annual Alumnae Homecoming banquet held at Edgcliff on June 3. Rosemary was admitted into the "alumnae association along with her classmates at the same banquet.

Cliff Breeze

"Out with the old and in with the new" is the theme of campus activity as Edgcliff prepares for graduation.

It seems an age-old tradition that graduates depart to the tune of "Pomp and Circumstance." The poring over of registers for commencement exercises is something of a ritual, it's a bit like waiting a bit too long for the light to turn green. It's boring. It's tedious. It's a bit of a let down, but still interesting.

Congratulations and best of luck to the new student officers Anna May Frayen, Jean Wilke, Glvndy Meehan, Richard Boccard, Gary McCarty and Ze O'Connell. We've all heard many a tale of how the people of the world working so hard for a splendid peace are taking note of the President's progress. We are pleased that some campus officers have taken the opportunity to attend the dedication of the new Edgcliff building on the Edgcliff campus. They spent the day with their friends, enjoying the pleasant weather the day provided.

This year's outgoing senior class president, Mary and George, has been a great example of leadership. She has made the best of her four years at Edgcliff, and with her help, the students have continued to grow in spirit and scholarship.

Cutting Pages

The Mary Book edited by F. J. Sheed, published by Sheed and Ward, New York, 1964. This is a collection of essays and poems by the author, as well as many others, who have contributed to this book. The collection is divided into themes such as love, marriage, and faith, and is rich in poetic and philosophical reflections on these topics.

A book of interest to Catholic readers is The Pillar of Fire by Dr. Kariern Stern, Harcourt, Brace and Co. There have been many recent autobiographies and novels with a conversion to Catholicism, but this one is really much more than that. It is the story of a girl and her family, and her struggles with the various ideologies that have influenced her. A Jewish and political writer, the author has found his mental strength over the past years to bring about his own conversion to Catholicism, and has striven to bring the world closer to this ideal.

Another book of interest to Catholic readers is Our Lady of Mercy. It appears that the answer could be found only in religion. At first he prac-
