Merry Order Executives Confer At Edgecliff

The executive committee of the Educational Conference of the Religious of Mercy of the United States of America met Monday, Jan. 11 at Our Lady of Cincinnati college, to plan the second general conference meeting which is to be held in conjunction with the National Educational association in Chicago next April.

The executive committee, which was appointed by the Mother General of Bethesda, Md., planned the conference for over 2,000 teaching Sisters in the nine provinces. The first general meeting of this group was held last April in Atlantic City.

Members of the executive committee are: chairman, Sister Mary Xavier Higgins, dean of St. Agnes college, Mt. Washington, Baltimore; vice chairman, Sister Mary Jane Bous, chairwoman of St. Xavier college in Chicago and executive secretary, Sister Mary Lucille Middleton, president of Mercy college of Detroit.

Departmental officers include Sister Mary Grace, president of Our Lady of Cincinnati college, chairman of the college department; Sister Mary Colette Raffler, principal of St. Vincent Academy, Fremont, Ohio, chairman of the secondary school department and Sister Mary Natalie Blood, diocesan supervisor of schools in Providence, R. I., chairman of the elementary school department.

The objectives of the Educational Conference are to advance the educational work of the Sisters.

Name Of New Library Honors Mother Hilda, Founder Of College

According to a recent announcement of the college administration, Our Lady of Cincinnati’s new library, now under construction, is to be known as the Hilda Brossman library in honor of Mother Hilda Brossman, the founder and first president of the college.

Mother Hilda’s active service as a member of Mercy was ended on Jan. 14, 1941. Besides her close ties with Edgecliff, Mother Hilda had been a major figure in the parochial schools, director of Our Lady of Mercy academy and principal of various communities.

Edgecliff’s new library will serve as a permanent memorial of the efforts of Mother Hilda who did much to establish the college of Our Lady of Cincinnati.

Edgecliff—An Honored Name
As a token of the reverence due Our Blessed Mother under any title or aspect of her heavenly character, the name of our college, Edgecliff, is an abbreviated form of the name of our college, Edgecliff is most appropriate because it has a proper and long-standing connection with the history of our school. The name Edgecliff was given to the college in its inception, taken from Edgecliff drive, the name of the street, and the area of the land that was then owned.

The Rosary: Its History and Devotion
During the Marian Year everyone will be interested in finding out as much as possible about the Mother of God. The book, The Rosary, was written about Mary will therefore be in considerable demand. Several of the newest ones which will be most important part of our task is the positive one of constructing peace both by prayer and political action. American Catholics are fortunate in their leaders. Our public leaders, notably striving for world understanding and harmony, are today undergoing support of the meetings at Bermuda and Berlin.

professor writes first article on edgecliff for argentines

"los principios," a daily newspaper of Cordoba, Argentina, recently featured an article by Genovia Brichetto, head of Edgecliff's Spanish department, which outlined the history and aims of Our Lady of Cincinnati College.

In the article entitled, "Ruestra Senora de Cincinnati," Senorita Brichetto describes the aspirations of the student life at Edgecliff, including the activities as the freshmen's opening ceremony. The article includes a description of the history of the college, especially of the Sisters of Mercy and their role in the founding of the college.

A picture of the administration building is accompanied by the article. Senorita Brichetto concludes by stating, "Our Lady of Cincinnati college is the only Catholic college in the United States. The students acquire no doubt, intellectual and spiritual superiority, since they learn to appreciate Truth and Beauty in God and to base all the acts of daily life on a Christian philosophy."

While in the United States, Senorita Brichetto also served as a correspondent of Los Principios, the most widely read Argentine newspaper in Cordoba. This article on Edgecliff was first in a series to be written on her experiences in this country.

The producers of "Julius Caesar" are sponsoring an essay contest in Cincinnati, in which a contestant must tell, in a hundred words or less, "I think because." The winner of the Robertus Prize will be presented on February 3.

Julius Caesar is undoubtedly one of Shakespeare's great plays, but here we are, as movies - and it is a pride of the casting in almost perfect. James Mason gives a magnificent portrayal of the troubled Brutus. Mr. Mason's performance of this insensitive man may well earn an Academy Award for him.

For many of us college students, the movie offers our first chance to see the famous role of Brutus. Mr. Sigel's reputation is a good Shakespearean actor is well deserved. Mr. Mason's portrayal is a good interpretation of Casaubon, the true ringleader of the conspirators against Caesar.

Weakness of Marlon Brando

The one real weakness of "Julius Caesar" is the part of Marcus Antonius. Marlon Brando's performance is well done, but not very good in parts. It was amusing to hear him suggest that he had not intended to overcome his speech difficulty, which was so evident in street scenes.

Some critics may find fault with Ms. Teresa Wright's interpretation of Caesar as a rather weak political figure. However, this fault may be due to the director, rather than to Mr. Calherm. It is a generally delightful experience to see Shakespeare's character in one of the scenes from the original play in presenting the movie version. The cutting was well done, and the film version of the play is left intact, and to my thinking, the adaptation of the play is better. Some of Shakespeare's greatest endings, as Anthony says at the close of the play: "... his life was gentle, and the last scene of it most excellent. So mur'd in him that Nature might stand up and say, "This was a Man!"

And David Blaine

George Bernard Shaw's Mind-

"Julius Caesar" was presented at the Cinematheque on Tuesday, Feb. 27. It was a French peasant girl at Christmas time and a Spanish girl at the birth of the Christ Child through this same season. It is now coming to Our Lady of Cincinnati, which will be followed by two and one-half hours at the end of the show in New York City, under Madame Napoli.

A group of Edgecliff girls sings Christmas carols on the program, including the Polish lullaby, "He Is Sleeping," and Jean Joyce, senior, was narrator.

Dr. Muncker Makes Speaking Jaunt

Between the 17 and 30 of January, Dr. Gabrielle Muncker, professor of German, will go on a lecture tour in New Mexico and California. She has been chosen by the American Institute Committee to give her impression of the currents of educational and religious life in Western Germany and also of her experiences in the United States.

Dr. Muncker will be speaking at California State University at Fullerton, at the University of New Mexico at Portal, and at several centers in California and the University of the Pacific. She will also go to the University of California at Los Angeles and on to Albuquerque.

She will also be at San Diego, Whitier and San Francisco.

Her travels and experiences as such are with the students of the United States and the United Nations have added to her qualifications as a speaker and a lecturer.

She is in permanent service under the Bishop of Tunis, Beraria, and knows the educational work of the West German Government. She is a worker during this tour.

Dr. Muncker, which participated in "Waterlily," will be members of the physical education classes which meet on weekday afternoons.

Some of the featured acts were: "Grace and Flamenco" and Diana by Sylvia and Brickefle, Toddy Bay's performance, and the Leafs. Miss Kerr seems to have been used to cut some parts. It was necessary to cut some lines.

The Edgecliff debaters participating will be Barbara Vanocc, Ignatia Hartman, Barbara Morgan, and Annetta Turner.

Social Worker Discusses Family

Miss Mary Jane Suydam of the Hamilton County Family Service and a former columnist for the New York Herald addressed the Household Management class Jan. 5 in the organ room of McAuley hall.

Her topic was "The Basic Needs of Individuals in the Home" and "The Boys and Girls Club is a unique family organization in Hamilton that is designed to manage family resources and to teach the value of family to the children in the family.

She outlined the needs of the child, pre-school and adolescent children in the family and the needs as to food, clothing, home and attitudes for other family members.

Courses of Mercy are in obedience with the goals of Catholic education and to encourage the spirit of mutual charity and cooperation in promoting the educational progress of the Sisters of Mercy in the city and in the state.

The Sisters of Mercy of the Union conduct eight colleges, 12 secondary schools and 400 elementary schools in the state. They also conduct Christian Catholicism training schools in addition to their hospital and institutional work.

AAC Meet Follows

This meeting of the executive committee preceded the opening of the conference of the Association of American Colleges being held from Jan. 13 to 14 at the Netherland Plaza hotel here in the city. The American Conference of Academic Deans met on Jan. 13 in connection with the AAC meet.

Attending sessions of the Association of American Colleges will be Sister Mary Grace, president of the college, Sister Mary Virginia, and Sister Mary Martina, registrar and several members of the faculty.

This is in contrast to ordinary playwriting's wit which comes only in an occasional line or in one whole speech.

What a talent Mr. Shaw displayed in his clever dialogue! I found fault with the dialogue only in the third act where the author began preaching and when the scenes, the ideas are rather peculiar or radical. This was what he might become tiresome.

The cast was quite competent. I might add that the Saturday evening was quite good (in an appreciative sense). As one might shout 'bravo' to a bullfighter who never passed, someone the center of the orchestra shouted 'good' after what he considered an excellent line. This was serious theater at the time. The line was, "Poor people never pray, they beg."

And for an evening's entertainment, I shout to G. B. S., 'good.'

Liturgical Commission Cites Ways To Live 'Year With Christ'

With traditional Epiphany customs and carols, the liturgical commission of the NFCCL will tonight close their "Holidays with the Church" observation which has extended over the Advent and Christmas seasons. After a supper meeting at Emery the group will assemble in the Art department, Studio St. Luke, where Rev. Juan, Urban, O.S.B., speaker of the evening, will discuss with the students the keeping of the "Year With Christ" in the home.

Attention will be directed towards that beautiful feast next in importance in the liturgical cycle and of special significance during Marian Year—the Purification or Candlemass. The importance of this day to young and old is engagingly told by Theresa Mueller in Our Children's Year of Grace, one of the pamphlets used for ready reference by the liturgical committees. "Yet before we enter through the dark gate of September into the sacred sanctuary we have the beautiful feast of Candlemas, with another prayer for peace in the world, since children and all that are childlike at heart, so long as they
