Ten Edgecliff Seniors Rate Inclusion
In American College Mag Who's Who

Student-Faculty Board
Makes Choice For 1957

Ten seniors of Our Lady of Cincinnati College were to be included in the annual Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities for 1957. These girls were selected by a board composed of two student representatives and faculty members. They were chosen on the basis of service to the school, leadership, academic standing and extracurricular activities.

Student Council President

Mary Ann Curtin, daughter of Mrs. Ruth Bowling, is a mathe­matic major and is president of the student council and held the offices of class president in her junior year and student council representative in her sophomore year.

Sociology major Mary Ann Curtello is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Curtello. Mary Ann is a president of the seniors class and is student council representative in her junior year.

Mary Ann Curtin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Curtin, is a history major. Mary Ann has not yet been decided upon; is associate editor of the Edge­cliff, and has been president of the Inter­national Relations club.

Players' Prexy

President of the Edgecliff Players, Mary Jeanne Grunk­emeyer, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Kuntz, is a history major. Mary Ann is the former editor, Kay Wetzel '56, on the faculty and student body. The program is based on five divisions of the college: Social Science, Re­ligion, Natural Science, the Humanities, and Community Service. In this way the program stresses the individual interests and still unites the college community in prayer during this season of blessings.

Mary Ann Curtin will tell how the church's treasury is the theme of the annual Advent observance, sponsored by the Social Science department and the presentation of the Ed­gecliff Players and the Choral club. The program will be held on Wednesday, Dec. 5 at 8:00 p.m. in the college auditorium. Loretta Baker, general chairman of the event, will be assisted by Casile O'Brien, in charge of the program committee and Norma Jean Lokcinski, stage manager. As the present­ers of tableaux are Alice Dannmaren, Mary Kay Kinney and Barbara Fern.

Advent Means Spiritual Preparation

Advent is not a new thing to any of us. As very young children we learned that this was the time of year set aside by the Church as a season of preparation for the coming of Christ. The Church has always marked this time carefully, many traditions have been neglected to give full consideration to this season of Advent and were reminded of it only on Sunday mornings when (if) they opened the hymn book. The Church's members who think of getting ready for Christmas only in terms of material, commercial preparation. However, in the past few years there has been an attempt on the part of the Church to make the celebration of Christmas more meaningful to faithful through a more solemn and attentive observance of Advent. Because we are fortunate enough to be attending a Catholic college, all of us are familiar with some of the beautiful liturgy of this holy season. We have heard some of the hymns and prayers which reflect the anxiety of the early peoples who, after 4000 years, were ready and eager to welcome the Birth of the Morning Star. We have been introduced to some of the customs which have been kept by Christians throughout many centuries. We have experienced a more moving and deeper meaning of Christmas because we have prepared for it the way the Church desires and not the way the secular world schemes. But let us not be selfish with our experience. Let us not live in the spirit of Advent only here at school and then forget about it when we return home. True true, and postulates, let us spread the glad tidings to our families and friends and encourage them to keep Advent with us, that on Christmas Eve we can join together in a prayerful pose which comes from the heart, not only from the lips—"Venite Emmanuel."

Egheads Do Not Rate Ridicule

The dispute of the campus age is on, and the heart of the dispute throns on anti-intellectualism. Where is the place of the campus intellectual, the spirit of the egghead—a more common name of the ridiculed intellectual? What does intellectualism mean?

It is a question that are puzzling wide-eyed college observers, but they are questions that are also facing the college-age people in the United States. We must hold the thinker in lower esteem than the United States. This, then, precipitates the cause for a lack of intellectualism on our campus. One result of this lack is allowed to rest on a theory that the American people have no need of the greater learning, the more comprehensive man. We have been introduced to some of the missions which have been kept by Christians throughout many centuries. We have experienced a more moving and deeper meaning of Christmas because we have prepared for it the way the Church desires and not the way the secular world schemes. But let us not be selfish with our experience. Let us not live in the spirit of Advent only here at school and then forget about it when we return home. True true, and postulates, let us spread the glad tidings to our families and friends and encourage them to keep Advent with us, that on Christmas Eve we can join together in a prayerful pose which comes from the heart, not only from the lips—"Venite Emmanuel."

First Winter Snow

A canopy of gray and blue,
And drifting clouds of darkened hue.
A heavy sky of drowning cheer,
Rene rage, as the cold wind weaves.
A vibrant, whistling, mocking term.
"Not so o n g, my girls, not so o n g.
The fleeting squirrel runs to hide,
Humanity retreats inside.
The golden queen of Fall bows low.
When winter sends her first soft snow.

Thankful For What? To Whom?

Tomorrow morning you will wake up in your warm, comfortable bed to glance at the sun beams bouncing off your window pane and wonder, "I wonder what will happen?"

From Ohio's Campuses

"Wanted: A college graduate who knows how to read with understanding, who understands clearly with precision and with comprehension." Campus Collegian, University of Toledo.

Now are the present colleges and universities prepared to graduate the "well-rounded" person which the modern world is waiting to accept? Last month we viewed a small portion of the new study plans which are being inaugurated in various Catholic colleges throughout the United States. These improvements mark a new way for the more liberal learning. Today we must consider that Ohio College professors are able to alleviate the problem of "laboring". However, they wish an idea of the general term, is used to refer to the building shortage present on every campus.

The work on the conversion of Zimmermann Library into a modern home economics building has begun at Wittenberg college. When complete, the building will afford the teaching of specific courses which would otherwise not have been given. It will include the following facilities: a nursery school which students will learn the care and education of young children; a laboratory for textile testing and a workshop where students may learn furnishing, finishing, interior design, home nursing and home management. The building is being added with eight modern kitchen units; a living-dining room where students may learn modern techniques of family management and practice furniture arrangement; a music studio for the planning, designing, construction and fitting of garments; and a laundry unit which is furnished with latest equipment.

New college students are now admitted to these colleges. Tentative plans include nine new major study plans: music, modern foreign languages, art, auditorium, chapel, concert, gymnasium with natatorium, library, residence and science. The architecture will be simple and modern.

The culmination of many years of faith and hard work has been realized in the new dormitory building. The college breaks ground for a new $100,000 library to be constructed on the college's enrollment fast approaching 2000, this will be a milestone in the history of the college.

The construction of sakes, several new playing fields are being constructed by Hiram college.

This "growth of campus" is not one to be taken lightly. It is time it should eliminate all the serious problem of over-sized classes held in poorly constructed, emergency buildings or those which are ready for a gala bonfire.

Sympathy is extended by the faculty and student body to Mary Garret Ryl '65, Jeannette Den- press '41 and Dorothy Booken '46 on the death of their father, Mr. and Mrs. Esther Bottomley on the death of their husband. Maria A. Brown '97

Father Callus Visits Campus

Seasonal Decorations Displayed At Assembly

Very Rev. Daniel A. Callus, O.F., will address the student body Nov. 8 at "The University of St. Thomas." At present, Father Callus is on the faculty of the University of Toledo.

Father was born in Malta and educated in Malta, Florence, Oxford, and Heidelberg. He has been a Professor of Studies at Blackfriars, Oxford and has also held a position at the University of Oxford and the University of Louvain, Belgium. As a visiting professor he has taught in the University of Madrid, the Pontifical University of Rome, this Studies, Talcott, and the University of Dunham. He has also served as a member of the Committee of the Medieval Latin Diction.

Among his publications are works as: Introduction of Aristotle's Learning to Oxford; The Condensation of St. Thomas at Oxford; Robert Grossteine, Scholastic Theology.

Dec. 12, Mrs. Frank Herrs will demonstrate various Christmas decorations at a student assembly. Her arrangements will include paper, tinsel, mat, and door decorations for these gifts demanding special wrapping. The session will conclude with showing how to wrap beautiful packages with the assorted trimmings available.

Alumnae Meet, Plan Year's Activities

The first meeting of Edgecliff's alumnae is being held at 6:00 p.m. in Emery Hall. Hupper with Our Lady of Cincinnati, '36, will preside. This meeting is primarily for the purpose of planning the year's coming activities. Perhaps the highlight of the evening will be the introduction of Mr. R. E. Douce, Public Relations Director, who will explain the role of the alumnae of Edgecliff and the work which has been sent to all the alumnae by Miss M. Grewe, informing them of the supper meeting. A pictorial on this year's alumnae activities was shown and the fact that the present freshman class will be the Silver Jubilee Class.

Have you noticed the "new look" of the Edgecliff this year? A project, the headline "Edgeway" has been added to what has been used in the past. It is being employed to give the makeup of the paper a little more variety and pizzazz.

The volleyball team headed by Joyce Elsenshaw has won the intramural volleyball tourney. Members of the team are: Mary Alice Consenghilt, Donna Duber, Pat Dorn, Marian Dattilio, Marjorie Konkler, Sue Rice, Therese Stum and Martha Wirtet.

Juniors are anxiously waiting for their class rings.

Did you ever wonder what it would feel like to be called from class and told that you had won $100? Did you ever wonder what the situation was: a faint, or a cry of happiness? First hand information can now be obtained by asking one of Edgeway's own winners, Joseph Doran. For this very situation confronted him when, at the Mother's Club Fall Card Party Oct. 25, his name was pulled from among the many for the grand prize of $100. Quite a surprise with which to be greeted, wouldn't you say? Congratulations Mr. Doran may all your inter-ruptions be as profitable!

Christmas is again in the air. Preparations for this big occasion have included book marks and blessings to be given as gifts particularly to Sisters, students and teachers. Students in the sculpture class are making several new figures for the traditional Christmas crib. These new figures along with the eight original ones will be used to re-create the Nativity scene. Some of the girls are increasing their store of gifts by making different kinds of jewelry and objects for the home in the line of pottery. Posters for the Christmas Cheer party sponsored by the student council, are also being made. The girls have also been working on a series of Adven Christmas cards, being drawn by Carole O'Brien, junior, and Barbara Finn, senior.

Art Department Prepares Decorations

Apparing as guest speaker at a regular meeting of the Edgecliff faculty on Nov. 8, Dr. Walter Langsam, president of the University of Chicago, and Dr. Langsam stressed the recognition of spiritual values.

He stated that the founding fathers of our country had no intention of outlawing religion; they wished only to prevent any church group from gaining control of the government and so be able to establish a state religion.

Dr. Langsam expressed the belief that moral training is essential to education and a confidence that an interest in spiritual values is strong on America's campuses.

A coffee hour followed Dr. Langsam's address, giving faculty members opportunity to chat with their guest.

Thanksgiving-1957-Reviewed; Holiday Continued For A Week by Mary Ann Curtin '57

How often have we wondered just what the first Thanksgiving was like. Who came to the dinner on that Thanksgiving day? what was served at that meal and how did everyone act, what did they say? This Thanksgiving, 1957, may seem far different from the distant day, 1621, but the qualities of Thanksgiving have continued to remain quite the same.

When the Pilgrims arrived at Plymouth in Dec. 1620, after a long voyage in the tiny Mayflower, they held a brief Thanksgiving on the shore of that landing. They offered a Thanksgiving prayer to God in gratitude for deliverance from the miseries and perils of the sea. But it was not until a year later, after a winter of cold weather and scarcity of food and a time of tiny planting, that the Pilgrims held their first official Thanksgiving.

The first Thanksgiving lasted almost a week with the Indians as guests. The occasion was a proclaimed holiday for feasting and recreation after a year of untold hardships. Among the pilgrims festiv- ing were Captain John Smith, John Alden, Priscilla Mullins and Governor William Bradford.

The grant of Mass was the greatest thrill for the Indians was guest. After their guests left, the Indians returned two more days before setting to work again and preparing for the hard winter to come.

Prayers Offered For Hungarians

A special bulletin was sent across the country recently from the national NPCCS office to all its participating members. The bulletin contained suggestions of ways in which Catholic college students could help their colleagues in Hungary who put up such a valiant struggle against the forces of tyranny. Edgeway's student council, acting in the name of the entire student body, has adopted several of these suggestions.

Last Monday, the feast of St. Elizabeth of Hungary, a special Mass was offered in the college chapel for the people now under Russian oppression in Hungary, as well as for those who gave their lives in the recent revolt. After Mass a collection was taken up for aid to Hungarian students. The money will be forwarded to the national office of the College and University Relief Administration. To further the cause of world peace, students are urged to participate in the oral recitation of the rosary for half an hour in the chapel at 12:40 pm.

Congratulations! To the cast, directors and stage crew for an outstanding performance.

Catholic Action Spreads Faith

Students Active In Social Welfare Work

Several of Edgecliff's juniors and seniors have been lending a helping hand to some of the less fortunate children in the Cincinnati area.

Alice Dammarell, Marjorie Kasser, Louise Thoma and Helen Thorpe spend their Sunday mornings at St. Francis Seraph hall teaching catechism to a group of children who attend public schools. The group is composed of about 40 children who range in age from five to 15 years. After an hour's instruction the children and their "student" teachers attend Mass at St. Francis Seraph.

On Saturday afternoons three seniors of the sociology major assume the roles of nursesmaids and kindergarten teachers at the St. Joseph Infant Home. Carol Dorn, Arlene Dulle and Patricia Langsam are active in the institution playing with the youngsters and giving them tender loving care and attention they would receive were they in their own homes.

On Stage

From then on it is as if a whirling kaleidoscope were placed before our eyes. We fly across white capped mountains, on the rim of a volcano and across the unexplored. The unexplored since a once time of Christ, the Paramore in Greece where the idea of democracy began.

It is perhaps the greatest thrill for the Christian is the visiting of the places of Christ's life. They are treated with a prayerful solemnity and the choice of music played through the magic of stereophonic sound is some of the most inspiring ever heard. It is indescribable to tell how one feels to be "standing" just outside of the tomb the day after Easter. To walk in the grassy church all the way through St. Peter's Basilica in Rome.

All too soon the production concludes and the audience is back again in America. A hurried look at some of the wonders and then a magnificent choir sings "This is My Country"—an appropriate medley.

"The House of the August Moon." 1. The house of the August Moon is a delightfully clever story that exposes the conflict between the country and the city. 2. The characters are well developed and the humor is spot on.

Debaters Ready For Tilt; Other Clubs Plan Events

"Resolved: That The United States Should Discontinue Direct Foreign Aid," is the topic which will be controversially discussed this week by the Edgecliff Debaters club. The club's president, Frank K. Hostetter, made this announcement at a recent gathering of the club.

Mr. Ascher, dietician for the Cincinnati Milking Company, was the guest at the dinner meeting of the Home Economics club, Nov. 8. A special menu was planned of meals for working men.

Sue Van Lehr, president of the Saddlemate club, and Rose Marie Himan, who attended the 7th-Annual Annual Award Banquet Nov. 10 at the Lincoln Lodge in Columbus, Ohio.

Edgecliff Flayer are fully recovered from their recent production of "Anastasia" and for the past two films, "Film Makeup" and "Film Composition.

The films will be both interesting and educational. A girl will be elected to represent the club in NFCCS activities. It will also be her job to inform the Public Relations Department of any publicity concerns about the club.

Mr. Mayo Moha, a graduate of Xavier University, will attend the meeting of the IBC and Tri-Lingual on Europe, emphasizing Germany and France. The meeting will be held Dec. 5 at 5:30 p.m. in Emery.

At present Mr. Moha is a writer for the British Overseas and will go into foreign service in the near future.

The constitution of the Music club is being changed to include the Chattaway, Francis Loftus and Dr. Anne Gruebauer will be present with a musical program at the concert club meeting, Wednesday, Nov.

Meet Prof. Snoekel

Our readers who have noticed the appearance of "Professor Snoekel" elsewhere in this paper may appreciate a word of explanation.

Professor Snoekel is a male faculty member at a woman's college and with each appearance he will demonstrate some of the frustrations visited upon the mere male when he faces situations resulting from feminine psychology.

For a further illumination on the word, a "snorkel" is a device by means of which fresh air may be drawn into a submarine even when the water is muddy. Our cartoon character, submerged in youthfulness, could use some relief of meaning.

Advent Program

A special verse choir and the Choral Union will give the popular Advent in the program. They will present the Advent song in keeping with each division.

Archbishop Attend

His Grace, Archbishop Alter, will be the special guest of the school and will be given in his honor before the program. The faculty, resident students and all seniors who are participating in the program will be present at the dinner.
