College Increases Faculty Membership In Wide Variety Of Specialized Fields

Fourteen new faces will be seen among the faculty on campus this semester.

New members of the theology and philosophy departments are Sister Mary Neri, R.S.M., who will instruct classes in logic, and Sister Mary Evangelista, who will teach courses in the general education division of the nursing program.

New members of the theology and philosophy departments are Sister Mary Neri, R.S.M., who will instruct classes in logic, and Sister Mary Evangelista, who will teach courses in the general education division of the nursing program.

Robert O. Buse, who was a frequent visitor to Edgecliff when he served as an account executive with Merrill Lynch, will teach classes in logic, theology, and philosophy.

Dr. Charles J. Schare, formerly a research chemist with the National Labor Office of the National Industrial Conference Board, will teach General Inorganic Chemistry and History of Chemistry.

Dr. Carlos L. Vega, a native Cuban who studied in Spain, will teach Spanish. He founded a private university in Cuba, taught at several Cuban universities, and produced television programs on his native island. Since his arrival in the United States, he has taught at the universities of Louisville and Cincinnati.

Rosemary Waller, a member of the first volunteer group to the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, has been named an associate in applied music at Edgecliff. A Pupil- bright Scholar in Paris for two years, she has been soloist and concertmaster of the Bach Festival Orchestra in Carmel, California.

Sister Mary Evangelista, R.S.M., will teach Composition and Rhetoric, Survey of English Literature and Advanced English Composition.

Edgewood Invites High Schoolers To Open House

The event is planned to give high schoolers a look at the college's rapidly expanding campus. Cheryl Zimmer, president of Student Council, will head the committee of hostesses who will take the visitors on campus tours.

They include seniors Deanna Hocker, Linda Beardsley, Cathy Cron, Sally Schlottke, Ann Marr, Maureen McPhillis and Catharine Schroon.

Also acting as aides will be juniors Judy Marshauer, Sally McDevitt, Nancy Zimmerman, Nancy Kennedy, Delores Macke, Maria Curro and Kimberly Depue.

Sophomores Jane Smith, Frances Bumey, Mary Lynne Yanzoy, Collette Brehm and Valerie Odem will assist in the arrangements.

Edgecliff Initiates Courses In Adult Education Program

Marking the beginning of Edgecliff's Adult Education Program, evening courses in astronomy, modern math, and psychology are a new feature of the curriculum this fall.

Beginning next Tuesday, the classes will meet once a week from 7 to 9 p.m. Students may attend on a credit or non-credit basis.

Dr. Siegmund A. E. Betz, English professor and chairman of the classics department, will conduct a two-semester course in Descriptive Astronomy. Dr. Betz will survey present-day astronomical knowledge with illustrated lectures, use of the telescope, and practical exercises.

A two-semester course for parents is Fundamentals of Modern Mathematics, to be conducted by Sister Mary Antoinette, R.S.M., associate professor of mathematics and education. Sister Antoinette will acquaint parents and other interested adults with the fundamental concepts of the new math program taught in elementary schools.

Dr. William C. Wester II, assistant professor of psychology, will conduct a course in the Psychology of Adjustment, dealing with mental health in persons of all ages. This one-semester course will include lectures by other local psychologists.

Those interested may register Tuesday evening, Sept. 28.

Grant of $2,000

Edgecliff has received a $2,000 assistance grant to education from the 3 M Co., St. Paul, Minn., through the firm's local Thermofax Sales, Inc.

It consists of teaching tools such as overhead projectors, transparency-maker and originals, 60 reference books, and a lecture projector as a guide for the college's audio-visual director.

Sister Virginia Announces Revision Of Master Plan

A revised master plan of development for Edgecliff, after an eventual enrollment of 1,200 students was revealed by Sister Mary Virginia, R.S.M., president, at a recent meeting of the President's Council.

One feature of the plan, she said, will be construction of an addition to the Administration Building to provide a conversion of the college's bigest facili­ties, and a student indoor recrea­tion area.

Eventually, she added, the col­lege plans to erect a new Admin­istration Building on property the college owns along Cypress Street.

The President's Council also re­ceived a report showing that dur­ing the past year almost $50,000 was contributed to the school by alumni and members of the Edgecliff Fathers Club.

The council elected James J. Centner, of the Hess and Eisen­hardt Co., vice-chairman, suc­ceeded by Frank Van Lahr. At the same time, A. J. Long was re-elected chairman, and William J. Dam­marzii re-elected secretary.

French Major establishes new link with France

French major Betty Seibert, a French major at Edgewood College, will be spending her junior year in France.

Edgecliff is participating in the Mercy colleges' Extension Program in France, the local being the University of Angers in the Loire Valley. Betty, shown here, will be the first Edgecliff student to attend. She and four other American students will spend their junior year in concentrated study of the language and literature of the country.

The city of Angers is known for the excellence of its educational institutions. The university, founded in 1221, has an enrollment of about 3,000 students.

Sister Mary Virginia, R.S.M., president of Our Lady of Cincinn­ti College, is responsible for much of the planning that has gone into this trip. She traveled to France about two months ago to visit Angers and to complete the necessary arrangements for study.

The five students will make the crossing by boat. En route, they plan to keep themselves busy studying about the country and writing about their experi­ences. Betty has already promised to keep in touch with the stu­dents at Edgecliff by writing fre­quently.

Student Critic Reviews Maryland Production

by Laura Weaver '66

Vacationing in Maryland, I happened to see the Olney Theatre's performance of A Raisin in the Sun by Lorraine Hansberry. The company's productions remain high in quality, with one or two standing out as particularly well done. "Raisin" proved to be one of these.

The play deals with a Negro family in the tenements of Chicago. The activating influence is with the receipt of insurance money. As the money brings with it the opportunity for the fulfillment of various dreams - a new house, a college education and a business venture - a sudden confusion is demanded of people who have never before had an opportunity for advancement. The sudden gain is equaled by a suddenly broken down and misunderstood trust. The strains on personal relationships that resulted in a final resolution of them constitutes the central interest of the play.

Marlene Warfield as Beneatha Younger was vibrantly alive and in command of every moment. Almost as "Maran" gave her demanding role humor, guiltiness, and a strength born of suffering and defeat.

The sensitiveness of the cast as a whole, whether in individual roles or in their interaction on stage, was fully believable.

William H. Graham, executive producer of Olney Theatre, believes that an intense communal feeling between actors and director, coupled with an understanding of the play as a whole, produces a piece that is often beyond the expectations of either cast or director. At Olney the feeling was there and was transmitted to the audience.

New Course Surveys Skies

John Keats, the English Romantic poet, compared his feelings upon discovering Chapman's Homer, to those of a "waterer in his garden who has just found the key." We are sure that this same intellectual awakening will be experienced by Edgcliff's "watchers of the skyes" as they participate in the evening astronomy course inaugurated for the first time this year as part of the Adult Education Program.

"New planets," however, are not the only objects of study provided by the evening courses. In "Fundamentals of Modern Mathematics," parents will be able to acquaint themselves with the program now being carried out in our elementary schools.

Mental health is another area of vital concern to the general public. The course "Psychology of Adjustment" will answer the needs of those adults who wish to learn more about the human personality.

Since the courses are open to both men and women, Edgcliff is providing the entire adult community of Cincinnati with the opportunity to satisfy its natural curiosity and to gain practical knowledge in these specific areas.

We hope this initial effort will be a success, so that the Adult Education Program in future years can be expanded to additional courses of interest to the general public.

"Lord That I May See...

"Lord that I may see...

Have you ever stopped to wonder how many of us never really "see" anything? We go along day after day blindly unaware of what's going on around us. We sit in class earning our degrees, but to acquire sufficient military strength for a strong bargaining position. In his speeches he has repeated unconditional negotiations, but Hanoi has consistently refused. Even as the President ordered additional troops into Viet Nam he started his warnings to negotiate. Johnson has been attacked recently for being both too weak and too strong in his dealings with Hanoi. Many European countries disapprove of the U.S. presence in Viet Nam and feel that current U.S. policy is preventing West-East agreement on the reunification of Berlin. In the U.S., extreme left-wingers attacked Johnson as a bloodthirsty madman, and indulge in such stunts as burning draft cards and stopping troop trains.

Richard Nixon, however, reported to Congress that repeated statements of his willingness to negotiate would only prolong the war. The American citizen, like the Englishman, decided to "white paper" the Administration's willingness to negotiate in Viet Nam and to pay Hanoi and Peking the impression that the U.S. would not take a strong stand in Viet Nam.

Like the excellent politician that he is, Johnson has appealed to both parties to forget the differences and unite to form one strong policy. On August 25 he gave this warning to North Viet Nam:

"Hanoi should not for a moment entertain the illusion that the people of this country are not united in the work of this Government..."
Federal Council announces plans

Student Council

Does Student Council ever have meetings? What goes on when it does? Are student questions and problems actually discussed?

To answer these questions and to give all students the oppor­tunity to be heard, a special Student Council, Student Council and the Edgecliff decided to include a summary of Council action in each issue of the paper.

Council meetings in the near future include the annual Mass and breakfast, Student Council meetings, and a school assembly co-sponsored with NF, Wednesday, Sept. 28.

The primary purpose of this committee, according to Deanna, is "to make the club known to the students, especially freshmen, and to supply them with needed informa­tion to choose the club best-suited to their specific interests."

The committee, which includes the presidents of all campus clubs, will also co­ordinate club meeting dates and plan joint meetings.

Results of the campus party, announcement of standing com­mittees and chairmen, and pos­sibilities for activities during the current year are the main topics of dis­cussion at the first Student Council meeting, Sept. 7.

Cheryl Zimmer, president, an­nounced the following committees and chairmen: social, Kathy, senior representative; comp­munity, Kathy; finance, senior representative; cultural, Nina Curran, junior representative, and the four school organizations including hos­pitality, lay volunteers, and the xeris of Xavier University basketball and football tickets, Frances Skafz and Mary Lynne Yaney, sophomore representa­tive.

Membership on these committees and chairmanship of the in­dividual school committees is open to all students. More infor­mation on this will be posted within the next few weeks.

Lectures and social activities on campus were also discussed, and tentative arrangements for several functions were made and approved.

NOTE: There will be a "Sug­gest Box" in the Garden Room for the use of all students. Any comments, suggestions, or prob­lems may be written and will be read carefully.

Showing at Emery

New faculty member exhibits graphics

Emery Art Gallery is currently exhibiting the work of Mrs. Blau and M. Shapiro, shown here with one of her prints. The exhibit consist of works done in the graphic mediums including woodcuts, lithographs and etchings. The display is in the newly renovated ballroom of Emery which is known as the Gallery. The graphic prints are being displayed on an antique Victorian display rack. A display of the various steps in making a woodcut.

Her graphic arts exhibit opened informally Sept. 10. A formal re­ception was held Sept. 13. The exhibit will be on display through Oct. 31. Emery Art Gallery is open daily from 1 to 9 p.m. Shapiro's current exhibit marks the opening of the new Emery Gallery.

The artist, who has just been added to Edgecliff's faculty, is the wife of Donald Gluesc, president of Hebrew Union Col­lege. She was born in Cincinnati and received her professional training at the College of Design, Architecture, and Art. She con­tinued her studies at the Cincin­nati Art Academy for five years. Since 1955, she has worked ex­clusively in the field of print­making. Her work has been seen in four one-man shows and a va­riety of group events including national and international exhi­tions.
Five On Faculty Visit Europe

Dr. Siegmeud Bess and Sister Mary Virginia, president, recently attended the International Congress on Higher Education.

Five Edgecliff faculty members, just back from a three-week trip to Europe—sightseeing, lecturing, studying, and visiting—include Dr. Siegmeud Bess, Sister Virginia, and Dr. Jesse McCullough.

Sister Mary Virginia, president, flew to Europe in June to attend a three-week conference. As a guest of the University of Edinburgh, she was invited to speak at a session of the conference on higher education.

Dr. Bess and Sister Virginia, both members of the University of Edinburgh's faculty, also visited several universities and colleges in Europe. They traveled to England, Ireland, Switzerland, and the United States, where they were hosted by Dr. Jesse McCullough, president of Gannon University in Pittsburgh.

Sister Virginia, who is in charge of the college's international program, said that the trip was a valuable experience for the faculty members.

"We were able to see how other universities are organized and how they conduct their affairs," she said. "It was a great opportunity to learn from others and to share our experiences with them."

Traveling in various countries was the third phase of the six-week tour. In addition to England and France, Sister Virginia visited Ireland, Germany, Switzerland, and the United States, where she had the opportunity to meet with the Holy Father, and Father, and with the presidents of several universities.

This year's conference was sponsored by the University of Edinburgh, and it was attended by representatives from universities in the United States, Europe, and around the world.

The conference, which was held in Edinburgh, focused on higher education and its role in society. It included sessions on topics such as research, teaching, and administration.

Sister Virginia said that she was impressed with the level of expertise and knowledge displayed by the attendees.

"The conference was very well organized and the discussions were very insightful," she said. "I learned a lot from the other attendees and I believe that the experience was valuable for our college.
