Department Introduces Option of Special Ed.

The state of Ohio has just certified the new special education program at Edgecliff. Throughout the past three years recruiters have noticed an interest in a special education program from high school students. Because of this interest, the Education department has made it possible for students to major in Special Education and receive a Bachelor of Science degree in Education.

The general program is in effect this year on a part-time basis. Next year the program will be in full swing with the help of the new program being Sister Marie Patricia Connolly. Sister Marie Patricia has a degree in special education and has had about ten years of experience in her field.

The new education program will provide students with the knowledge to teach the educable mentally retarded. These children have the ability to learn such skills as reading, arithmetic, and some special subjects.

Because patience, love, and understanding are needed to teach these children, observation in the freshman year is a requirement. This requirement makes it possible for the student to decide, to a certain degree of certainty, whether he wishes to pursue such a field.

The department now has two part-time teachers who both have degrees in Special Education. They are Mrs. Mary Jane Blumenau and Mr. Harvey Stein. The two courses which are being offered this semester are Curriculum Development and Planning for the Educable Mentally Retarded and the Teaching of Reading and Language Arts to the Educable Mentally Retarded.

The effect of this new program is two-fold. It enlarges the education department and attracts students to Edgecliff. For further information, Sister Mary of the Education department can be contacted.

Clare Seidenfaden, '44, Receives Sullivan Award

Edgecliff's Alumni Association presented The Sister Mary Virginia Sullivan Award to Mrs. Clare Seidenfaden at the homecoming celebration, September 29.

Mrs. Seidenfaden, director of college relations and executive alumni secretary, is a graduate of the college and has worked in the alumni office for many years. The award was established five years ago as a memorial to Sister Mary Virginia Sullivan's contributions as President of Our Lady of Cincinnati College (Edgecliff). It is "given to an alumna who emulate[s] all of the qualities of a true Christian, impacted through Catholic liberal arts education."

Commenting on the award, which is an enamel and copper plaque, Mrs. Seidenfaden said, "I am very pleased and flattered to receive the award but I feel that the award really represents, to me, all of the alumni volunteer work which goes into making my work at Edgecliff delightful and so much easier. It really does serve as a challenge for me to work harder and accomplish more, to serve more and the college."

Mrs. Seidenfaden's daughter Jean is a junior at Edgecliff.

Relationships Faculty

This year both new and old faces appeared among the faculty on the Edgecliff campus. After receiving her Ph.D. in Math Education and Educational Psychology, Sister Constance Anne Carroll, R.S.M., has rejoined the French Department and is now a member of the Psychology and Math Departments.

Sister Ruth Returns

After a four-year absence, Edgecliff extends a warm welcome to Sister Ruth Nastold, Director of Student Activities. During the past four years Sister Ruth has been a guidance counselor and Director of Student Activities at Mother of Mercy High School in Cincinnati. Sister Ruth commented that she is "very pleased to be back at Edgecliff and that I'm an active part in Freshman Orientation this fall. Her office is located in the new Student Services Center.

Title Experiments Photography

Edgecliff College welcomes to Emery Galleries Sept. 26-Oct. 17 an exhibition of color photographs by Walter G. Seidenfaden. Photography is Mr. Seidenfaden's hobby. His exhibit is a collection of 28 color prints taken between 1962 and 1971 in Cincinnati as well as many other parts of the world. According to his own art, Mr. Seidenfaden tries to capture on film what are to him the most interesting views, people and designs. The prints are 30- by 40-inch 25-millimeter film which has been enlarged into varying sizes. All pictures are available for purchase.

Mr. Seidenfaden is a native of Cincinnati and a resident of Walnut Hills. He is employed in a computer engineering and has been serving as a member of Edgecliff's President's Council since February 1966.

Silence is Wooden... Write On!

SPEAK UP! It's about time that Edgecliff students stop using roommates and study partners as sounding-boards, and start channeling their thoughts in more fruitful directions. Too often, legitimate complaints regarding the Edgecliff community fall upon sympathetic but powerless listeners. At the same time, many creative inspirations are never expressed, and words of praise are unheard.

Today's world emphasizes the importance of communication and yet too many of our college community are failing to express their convictions through productive channels. One of the best outlets for communication, The Edgecliff's "Letters To The Editor," limps their dialogue...

This column is yours, and through it you can relay your thoughts, compliments and gripes. Little time and effort is required of you to express your views. Merely state your ideas in writing, sign your name and drop it in the envelope on The Edgecliff office door (Administration Building, room 12).

The saying, "Silence is Golden," is passe. We challenge the Edgecliff students to "get with it.

Frenchman Views Changing U.S. in Current Monograph

by Sister Carolyn Biskach

With Sartre or Jesus, by Frenchman-Francois Rabel, is a challenging and original book. It is a starting book for those of us who are accustomed to reading and hearing accounts of the woeful state of society. Mr. Rabel states lately that the revolution of the twentieth century will take place in the United States, that it is only there that it can be happened, and moreover, it has already begun. For the ears of many Europeans, who tend to regard the United States as the cradle of imperialism and capitalism, and thus to be the overravers of every world revolution, this is indeed a startling proposition. The author proves his assertion by listing five basic areas of evolution which he asserts must happen simultaneously within a civilization in order to produce a true revolution. He shows how all five of these changes have begun in the United States, whereas in other countries at least two or three of them have not at all five. He includes the French and Rus­sian revolutions, which are the two or more of these aspects. The author is dedicated to defending the image of the United States as revolutionary against our own society, as a sort of counter­example. Thus the author tends to play down the reactionary elements in our own society, even to the point of excluding the possibility of the existence of a real silent majority. Thus the American reader of this book may tend to feel the author is somewhat overly optimistic about the success of this revolutionary movement. His does, however, show us our country as at least one where this revolution, and thus defines the extent of the change which has already occurred in our society.

Committee Proposes Greater Involvement with Local Community

One of the goals that was pros­posed last year by the new student government officers was to get students interested and involved in the Cincinnati community. In order to achieve this goal, the new student government has organized a committee of student government is now operating in full force, upon the chairmanship of Kay Brog. Student Volunteers Days, September 18, started the program by setting up booths and information centers for inter­ested students.

Student government has also set up a central communications serv­ice which will receive reports sub­mitted by all of the committees and thus the Rabel says that this service "will prevent commit­tees from reporting in their own words."

Mailboxes for student commentators will also be provided by the new student government. They will be placed near the student center clock­room in Stultiss Hall. The service will have mailboxes for all of your books in stock. Students, as well as all of your books on the third floor. Everyone will have their personal mailboxes while the mailboxes will be grouped alphabetically accord­ing to their last names.

SurveyProbesQuestion Of Interest to Colleges

by Marla Steun

What effect does the size of a university have on the behavior and attitudes of its faculty? A survey was recently conducted by Dana Hillier and Dodd Bogart in an at­tempt to answer this question. Their survey strives to discover if the size of a university affects the attitudes of its faculty members in relation to society or their own school structure. Of great concern is whether the faculty members' opinion differed according to their field of study.

Conduct by means of questionnaires, 46 universities were selected to represent the different sizes of colleges. A small university was classified as having less than 5000 students, such as Edgecliff. A large university consists of anything over 5000 students, such as the University of Cincinnati.

The results were interesting. The faculties of large institutions experienced a stronger feeling of powerlessness and isolation in their organization, but not in their the­ir—when compared to the faculty of the smaller universities. In an­other survey of the same kind, members of the Humanities experienced a lesser degree of societal powerlessness and isolation. It appears that the physical and social sciences, but teachers of the sciences were more active and less apathetic to society than teachers of the Humanities.

In the opinion of Hillier and Bogart, size-incomplexity in univer­sities is important in influencing the attitudes of its professors, but it is a minor variable that raises more questions than it answers.

I have always associated the calliope with hot air, weird vibrations and good times. Hopefully, others will also make this association.

"Calliope" is an attempt to make known the lighter, four side of the Cantel but this service "will prevent commit­tees from reporting in their own words."

Edgcliff Incorporates Yoga into Curriculum

Yoga as an ancient art has been discussed in mystical tones for centuries. It has recently been gaining worldwide popularity as a major avenue toward a supply of both body and smooth skin. More people are turning to Hatha yoga for a graceful and effective form of exercise instead of the traditional rigorous calisthenics. There are no age or sex limitations to yoga. However, for those who are already in shape, there is the added dimension of serenity and clarity of mind, which occurs naturally as the body learns to relax.

Edgcliff is now “turned on” to this phenomenon. On Monday, September 27, at 7 p.m., yoga classes will begin at Mercy Center on a non-credit basis. Miss Lilian Fulan of “Lilias, Yoga, and You,” seen on WCET-TV, will be instructing the classes on Monday evenings from 7:30 p.m. and on Thursday afternoons from 11:12-30.

All lifers’ classes will include a basic introduction to the practice of yoga, including the Sun Salutation, asana, pranayama class, and breathing techniques. These classes promise eventually to bring in a new and interesting flow. All first semester classes are required to attend the first meeting, after which other beginners’ class available on the schedule. The registration fee for the intermediate level for those currently enrolled.

Classes should bring their own blanket or mat and wear non- restrictive clothing. The registration fee is $18 for the semester, and the classes are limited to 30 students per course.

Field Starts Movie Season

W. C. Fields, Laurel and Hardy, and Bob Hope are just a few of the celebrities that will be brought to the campus.

The theatre’s successful summer season will be followed by an outstanding series sponsored by the Spanish Club. The student organization, composed of the entire Edgcliff Spanish-American Club, invites all to share in the fun and learning that is evident in the film. In addition, the department of drama and speech is inviting some French friends to attend the French Club’s motion picture, which will be arranged by the French Club.

Sunrise 71

Sunrise 71, the second edition of Edgcliff’s yearbook, will be released on campus October 1.

A notice will be posted at a later date as the exact time and place at which yearbooks can be purchased, will be scheduled. Payment still due should be mailed to Alice Krumm, the yearbook at 710 Montana Avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio 45211.

The theatre welcomes your continued support during the coming year.

Political Science

One important feature of the new academic year on campus is the Political Science Association. The department has named Sister Louise O’Brien, assistant professor of political science, the advisor of the association.

The first function of the new club was to hold elections, resulting in the following slate: Patrick Egan, president; Robert Stuck, vice-president; Kay Folan, secretary; and a tie for the office of treasurer.

The club, as a result, was able to integrate a basic introduction to the field of politics, and some new ideas for activities, such as inviting some French friends to attend the French Club’s motion picture, which will be scheduled at later dates. Mealtimes will not be held until after the first meeting, enabling new students to take part in the “building” of the 1971-1972 Psychology Club. The notice for the first meeting will be posted on the Student Government Bulletin board and on the bulletin board on the second floor of Grace Hall. All students interested in psychology are welcome to join.

The officers of this new club are: Pat Egan, president; Kay Folan, secretary; and Kay Folan, vice-president. The club is open to anyone interested.

Dr. Charles Schare, associate professor of English, will act as chairman of the untiring efforts of the Black Theatre on Saturdays. The Theatre’s successful summer season will be followed by an outstanding series of plays, to be presented December 2-5 and 9-12. A Student Government project, the production will be under the direction of the entire student body. Crews find Decorating Can be fun

Work on a new Student Center called the Maxwell House is under way in the basement of McAuley Hall. The name was chosen at the first 1971-72 Student Government meeting last spring. The Maxwell House will allow for a Student Government office, a large area for student dances, a coffee house atmosphere, and a large game room with pool table, ping pong, table, electric bowling, juke box, etc. The use of two additional rooms has not yet been designated. Suggestions are eagerly anticipated.

The decorating is being done by the students. Rita Pandy, President of Student Government, said, "So far the students have given it a cleaning and coated the walls with twenty gallons of paint." The opening date depends on how often and how many people work on it. All suggestions and volunteers to help are welcome.

You might be wondering at this point what happened to the old Student Center. It has been transformed into a Student Service Center, which is located on the third floor of the Theatre Building. Offices of Deans of Students, Director of Student Activities, and Director of Counseling Center are there.

Players constantly encounter new experiences. Whether it is a child riding a bike for the first time, or a freshman entering Edgecliff, the anticipation and hopes are present.

For the freshmen, the new way of life began during orientation week, August 25-28. It consisted of speeches, placement tests and schedule planning. Next came the meeting of new faces, important to any beginning phase of life.

This was accomplished through a Mess and Appetite, a picnic at Winton Woods, and a Horse-Me-Tour of the city.

Ten freshmen were asked in what ways freshman year has been a new start. Of that number, eight said they believed that friendship was the key factor in their new life. One student replied that in her search for friendship, she had to go out of herself to meet the other freshmen. Others replied that there are new subjects, new opinions which had never previously been encountered.

Students Exchange Roles With Faculty, Administration

October 1, 2 and 3 are the dates set for the next Fort Scott Weekend. This experience, like past ones, will include numerous opportunities for students, faculty members and administrators to share ideas and appreciate each other’s personalities. During this coming weekend there will be the opportunity for students to role-play the parts of school administrators and professors. These weekends are worthwhile experiences that not to be forgotten. The following will give interested students an idea of just what a weekend at Fort Scott is all about.

On September 29, freshmen, their student advisors, members of the faculty, and administration again set out for Fort Scott to try to get to know those new freshmen they have been around Edgecliff and perhaps begin to understand and learn about them. Despite the high recommendations of those who have previously been to such a weekend, many Freshmen were skeptical of the venture.

One of the best organized groups, sisterly cooperation in such a weekend, immediately offer their ideas.
